BRIGHAM PUT THROUGH THE THIRD DEGREE

BROKE DOWN IN ALL NIGHT CROSS EXAMINATION

MURDERER, HIS VICTIM AND HER HOME.

MRS. CELIA M. SMITH'S RESIDENCE, AT LONDONDERRY, N. H.

Confesses to Everything but the Actual Murder of Aged Mrs. Smith—Starts to Prove an Alibi, but American Reporters Find What He Says Is Untrue.

AFTER A TERRIFIC "THIRD DEGREE" EXAMINATION IN HIS CELL, LASTING FROM EARLY LAST EVENING UNTIL 4 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING, CHARLES E. BRIGHAM, UNDER ARREST IN LEWISTON, ME., WHERE HE WENT FROM BOSTON, CHARGED WITH THE BRUTAL MURDER OF MRS. CELIA MARSHALL SMITH, OF LONDONDERRY, N. H., COLLAPSED AND WEPT BITTERLY. HE HAD NOT SLEPT AT ALL AND WAS HAGGARD AND TREMBLING.

Sheriff Marcus M. Collis and Deputy Scott, of Rockingham County, N. H.; City Marshal Wing and Detective Beaulieu were closeted with Brigham during the night, according to dispatches from Lewiston, and kept up a constant cross fire of sudden and startling questions. When they finally left him at 4 o'clock this morning, Brigham was a nervous wreck, and appeared to be suffering intense mental agony.

Brigham Sobs Bitterly.

A Lewiston correspondent for the BOSTON AMERICAN saw Brigham in his cell. The prisoner broke down and sobbed bitterly. The officers thought he was about to confess, but he only sobbed his innocence.

"I don't know what made me run away," he sobbed. "It must have been the devil."

"This is awful for an innocent man," he said when somewhat more composed. "I have an awful pain in the back of my head. I can't describe my feelings."

Brigham to-day was taken from Lewiston to Portsmouth, where he is under indictment.

"I am glad to return; you don't know what a relief it is," he cried at the station.

He was dressed shabbily, and had no money or valuables.

The Lewiston police discovered to-day that Brigham has a sweetheart in Lewiston, whom he met since he went there from Boston. The police have her name, but will not make it public.

Sheriff Collis said at the Lewiston depot to-day:

"I have not the slightest doubt that Brigham is guilty and can be proven so. We have strong evidence which we cannot make public now. Brigham is sly, cunning, and a bad man."

The story told by Brigham to the Lewiston police as to his movements at the time of the murder, establishing an alibi, was corroborated to-day by his aunt, Mrs. E. H. Sleeper, of No. 106 Sumner street, East Boston, to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. She said:

"Charles E. Brigham is a nephew of my late husband. On Feb. 18 he called at my house and remained there until the 20th. That was the first time I had seen him for five years.

WANTED TO CASH CHECK.

"While there at that time he asked me if I would cash a check for him for $25. I refused, but told him I would take it to the bank. He said not to mind; that he would

GIRL TOOK TRINKETS, PASSING DIAMONDS BY

LYNN PRISONER THE MOST PUZZLING THEY EVER SAW, SAY LOCAL POLICE.

Miss Lottie Bartlett Walsh, the young woman arrested at Lynn for alleged larceny of about $600 worth of novels, pictures, bric-a-brac and other articles from the firm by which she was employed, is a mystery to the Lynn police. Chief Thomas M. Burckes declares that she is the most puzzling prisoner with whom he ever came in contact.

She could have taken valuable watches, diamonds and jewelry, the Chief says, but instead of doing so there were found in her room games for children, ping-pong sets, boxes of fiddle-de-winks and scores of other articles of which she could make no use.

Although the Chief asked her all sorts of what would naturally be considered embarrassing questions about the larceny of the goods, she answered them readily, but when he asked her age, the eternal woman in her flashed forth and she belligerently refused to answer the question.

Had No Accomplice.

The police believe now that the young woman had no accomplice. It is said that Miss Walsh is engaged to be married to William H. Davenport, a travelling salesman for a Philadelphia picture frame and novelty house.

Davenport went to Lynn to-day and he and Miss Walsh went to the law office of William E. Sisk and had a consultation. They both refused to talk about the case.

Davenport is well known in Boston and when here makes his headquarters at the American House. The police have two boxes filled with letters and telegrams from Davenport to the girl.

Mrs. Charles H. Pray, the girl's foster mother, declares that Miss Walsh is innocent, and that many of the articles the police took away from the house she herself bought, paid for and gave to the girl.

Chief Burckes said to a reporter for the AMERICAN:

"Miss Walsh's case is the most baffling that I have ever encountered. The girl does not seem to realize that she has ruined her prospects for life. I have seen women go all to pieces and indulge in hysterics of the most ridiculous character when accused of crime, but Lottie Walsh is the coolest female under arrest that I ever knew."

"When I inquired her age, she looked at me in utter amazement as she replied: 'I don't think you have any right to ask me that question,' while it appeared to me that that was about the mildest interrogation that I had put to her. It was the only question, however, that she objected to answering.

"With such overwhelming evidence against her and under what would have been to most women the most trying circumstance, Miss Walsh has been perfectly cool and collected, apparently utterly indifferent to the charge against her, and interested only in regaining her liberty.

Disposed of Nothing.

"I am satisfied that she has not disposed of a single article that she is charged with taking from the store of Moulton Brothers. She appears to have been possessed of a mania for taking things from the store and carrying them home.

"There were valuable diamonds, watches and jewelry in the store, but nothing of this nature was found at her home. All of the articles were such as were kept in the department of which she had charge. The members of the firm, like myself, are satisfied that the girl disposed of nothing."

What become of the marked bills that were given to Miss Walsh and failed to turn up at the desk is still a mystery, for they were not among the $49.50 found on

MOTHER SAYS SOME ONE STOLE 8-YEAR-OLD GIRL

ANNIE JOYCE, GOLDEN-HAIRED, OF BILLERICA STREET, MISSING FROM HOME.

After an all-night search through all parts of the city, a white-faced mother appeared at the Joy street station this morning and asked the police to find her missing daughter. Annie Joyce, aged eight years. The Joyce family lives at No. 18 Billerica street.

"I am sure some one has taken my child," said Mrs. Joyce, between her sobs of grief. "My husband and I have searched everywhere for her. We can find no one who has seen her since she left her playmates last night."

Seen at 6 Last Night.

Investigation by plain clothes men of Captain Peabody's division showed that Annie had been at the gymnasium on Joy street at 6 o'clock last night. She was playing with a number of little girls of her own age.

"I am going home," the little girl told them, and she started off down Joy street hill, going towards Chambers street. There all trace of the child has been lost.

Annie is described as being a very pretty child. She had a wealth of golden curls. Her mother said that when she went out she wore a pink dress and no hat.

Superintendent Pierce has ordered all stations in the city to take up an active search for the missing girl.

TRAVIS WINS GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

American Golfer Takes Victory from Blackwell in Great Contest in England----Led Throughout the Match----4 Up, 3 to Play.

LONDON, June 3.—Walter J. Travis, the American golf champion, to-day beat Blackwell in the finals of the British tournament, thus winning the world's championship on the links.

The trophy is taken from British soil for the first time in its history.

Travis lead Blackwell at the end of the first round by 4 up.

Travis and Blackwell played 36 holes, which is Travis's favorite game.

Travis won by a score of 4 up and 3 to play.

Hundreds of British golfers followed the game with eager eyes or keeping in touch with its progress by telephone or telegraph.

To have the championship of Great Britain go to an American by adoption, such as Travis is, was a heavy disappointment.

PADRONE CASES FOR CORTELYOU

Secretary Cortelyou and Commissioner of Immigration Sargent are expected in Boston to-morrow, when the investigation of the padrone system and the alleged dumping of pauper Hebrews into this port from London and other continental points will be taken up. It is expected that the investigation will take several days.

The inspectors to-day continued the examination of the 109 men and women who were detained on the arrival of the Ivernia. The cases of twelve Russian Jews who arrived penniless has been referred to Washington for instructions. It was found that the passage of these people was paid to this country by the London Board of Guardians, a Hebrew organization.

This is said to be the organization responsible for the other batch of paupers of the same nationality that arrived in this city last week.

Colonel Billings has already notified the department at Washington of his findings after an examination of the Hebrews.

PRETTY POLL WON THE OAKS

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng., June 3.—The Oaks stakes of 5,000 sovereigns, the classic event of the English turf, second only in importance to the great Derby stakes, was run here to-day, and won by Major Eustace Loder's Pretty Poll, ridden by Lane. F. Alexander's Bitters, with K. Cannon, who had the winning mount in the Derby, up, finished second; and Lord Falmouth's Flancee, ridden by Watts, was third. Four horses ran.

ACTRESS SEEKS TO SHOOT WOMAN IN THE AUDIENCE

CHICAGO, June 3.—"She has ruined my home and I will kill her," said Miss Elsie Cressy, of the "To Die at Dawn" company playing at the Bijou Theatre, as she sprang from the stage into the auditorium and started for Miss Jennie Epstein. Miss Epstein fled for the exit. Just as the actress came up with her intended victim Manager William Roche reached and overpowered her. The revolver flourished by Miss Cressy was not loaded.

FIGHT TO CLOSE SALOONS IN HUB

Prohibitionists say that the most aggressive fight for no-license known in this State for many years will be waged this Fall, and leaders are planning to begin the campaign early. The first step in Boston will be taken on June 9, when the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League convenes in Tremont Temple. The convention will be attended by delegates from all parts of Massachusetts, including the Rev. A. S. Gregg and E. E. Buck. The former is preparing to give saloon men in Worcester the hardest battle they have yet had to fight, and Mrs. A. S. C. Hall and John MacLaren will be conspicuous figures in the campaign. It is planned to raise $2,500 in Worcester alone, and efforts will be made to raise enough money here to conduct a most effective agitation in Boston. It is believed that the hour is ripe in Boston for a successful onslaught upon the liquor traffic. They say that Chairman Emmons, of the Police Board, has been arousing public sentiment in favor of shutting down the lid, and that his partly-prowling has awakened thousands of people to the necessity of stamping out vice. Judge Emmons may be asked to address the convention.

CALLS IT AN EDISON RAID

Representative Lenahan of South Boston to-day made a severe attack in the House on the Edison Electric Light Company, in connection with the bill providing for the dredging of the deep reserved channel of Boston Harbor to a depth not exceeding twenty feet.

"The real petitioners in this matter are the Edison Electric Lighting Company," declared Representative Lenahan. "They want a deep water channel in order to bring coal ships up to their docks. This company, which has broken every contract it has ever made with the State, simply wants to raid the treasury with the sanction of the House.

"Years ago the finest ships in the American navy were built by the Harrison Lloyd Company, in Boston Harbor. Where the channel leading to their dock yards was cut every dollar was paid by the company and not by the State. But this company wants the same thing done for them and the State to pay for it."

WANTS MORE BENCHES; LESS CITY SINECURES

Fierce Says $16,000 Could Be Saved in Bridgemen's Salaries.

WASTE BETRAYAL OF TRUST

"If the City of Boston can afford to spend $16,000 a year more in order to keep twenty men whose services are not required on the pay roll of the bridge division, it surely can afford to spend at least $5,000 to provide more benches for the city parks."

Thousands upon thousands of dollars are being dishonestly and wrongfully expended in Boston every year, and it is time to call a halt somewhere. Improvements for which there is a crying need are slighted in order to enable some politician or office-holder to provide a place for a number of his henchmen by giving them soft places on the city's pay roll. That was my sole reason for introducing a resolution in the Council asking the Mayor to discharge the unnecessary men in the bridge division."

Attacked Superintendent Lomasney.

Myron E. Pierce, councilman from Ward 11, made this statement to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN this morning. Mr. Pierce is a lawyer, with offices at No. 59 State street. He led the fight in the Council last night against Joseph C. Lomasney, Deputy Superintent of the Bridge Division. He offered an order calling the attention of the Mayor to the answer of Mr. Lomasney to the inquiries of the Council in regard to the extraordinary increase in the force of bridge tenders and assistants.

"Every officeholder unnecessarily kept in office represents a breach of public trust," said Mr. Pierce on the floor of the Council; and I think this is sufficient reason to ask the Mayor to dispense with the services of these superfluous drawtenders. Every dollar of public money unnecessarily expended is wrongfully and dishonestly expended."

The Council, after a hot defence of Mr. Lomasney by Councilman Marcovitz of Ward 8, laid the matter on the table.

"There was nothing personal intended in the remarks I made about Mr. Lomasney," said Mr. Pierce to-day. "I do not know the man. I have never spoken to him. I do know, however, from his own statements, that there are more men on the bridges than are necessary. It seems to me that someone is taking advantage of conditions to keep a lot of men drawing good salaries at the city's expense for his own benefit.

Untenable Ground.

"The defence made by Mr. Lomasney that the increase in the force is made necessary by the eight-hour law is untenable. Under the former Commissioner, working under the eight-hour law, there were not as many men on the bridges as now. On some of the bridges he worked three men during the long hours of the day and two at night. Lomasney works three men in a shift day and night.

"Lomasney's answer to the Council says that he has 124 men on the bridges, the payrolls show 127. He gives the eight-hour law as his excuse for employing fifty-three extra men. The excuse is good for thirty-three more men, which means $800 a year, and this is where I figure that $16,000 is being dishonestly expended in this department of the city government alone.

"If I have any influence in the Council, this matter will not be allowed to rest. There are other departments where the same condition of affairs prevails. These will be reached in time."

PASTOR WEDS FIRST LOVE

The members of the Second Presbyterian Church at Newburyport are looking forward to the home coming of their pastor, the Rev. T. J. McFadden, and his bride, formerly Mrs. Harriet E. Fox, a well known club woman, of Denver, Col. The wedding was at Colorado Springs.

The couple had not met since Mr. McFadden was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Littleton, Col., twenty years ago. In her widowhood Mrs. Fox learned of Mr. McFadden's bereavement, and an exchange of condolences followed. The proposal of marriage and acceptance occurred a few weeks ago, and Mr. McFadden at once departed for Colorado, where he arrived yesterday morning.

DID NOT FLEE, SAYS SCRIBNER

Fearing the scene that might be made in the presence of my wife, I ordered my oldest son to proceed along the street about a mile and wait for me."

Lieutenant Commander Scribner made this statement in regard to the rumor that had arisen, saying that he had fled to sea after the fatality, in his formal report to the Navy Department, containing the details of the killing of Marion Hohler, by his automobile.

"I was proceeding slowly and cautiously," continues the naval officer, "but the little girl became frightened and dashed back to the curbstone so quickly that there was not sufficient time to stop before my car struck her. I remained on the spot about twenty minutes, gave my name and address in the official record book of the car conductor."

BANANA PEDDLERS NOW CALL THEIR STRIKE OFF

The "banana strike" has been called off. The Greek and Italian pushcart men, who wanted the United Fruit Company to deal directly with them instead of through middlemen, gave up their fight after it had holding out two days without buying any fruit. They came to Long Wharf to get bought through the middlemen this morning, without making any trouble. They are about the streets now as usual, crying "Banan, buy banan!"

STRIKEBREAKER SCROUNDS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—Captain M. M. Drake, who sailed the Chili out of Buffalo in an effort to break the water blockade on the great lakes, is hard aground with his craft near the mouth of the Detroit River. Captain Drake has not sailed the lakes in thirty years.

REST AND REFRESHMENT ON A HARD MARCH.

(Copyright, 1904, by American-Journal-Examiner.)

Here is a photograph of Japanese soldiers stopping for a wayside meal during the march in Manchuria. It was taken by Jack London, the famous author and the AMERICAN'S correspondent with Kuroki's army, now operating against General Kuropatkin in the neighborhood of Feng-Wang-Cheng, Manchuria.

JAPS DIRECT ATTACK ON BOTH RUSS FLANKS

REINFORCEMENTS STILL POUR IN AND SUPPLY CAN BE KEPT UP FOR MONTHS.

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, June 3.—The Nagasaki correspondent of the Express says that although nearly 200,000 men, more than 400 guns, thousands of horses and wagons and tons of supplies have left Japan in the last three months, there is not the slightest sign of reduction in the rate of exodus. Transports leave every western port daily, each carrying an average of 1,000 men. There is every indication that this rate can be maintained for months. The available troops, including the reserves, are far from exhausted.

A large proportion of the troops despatched are intended to reinforce General Oku outside Port Arthur. The Telegraph prints a St. Petersburg dispatch saying that General Nodzu is now busily supervising the landing of the third Japanese army at Taku-Shan. Two divisions are going to reinforce General Oku, making his army 120,000, and the remainder will reinforce General Kuroki, bringing his army up to 140,000 men.

The military authorities in St. Petersburg believe that the large and ever-increasing Japanese army on the roads around Mukden and Haicheng make it clear that the Japanese plan of campaign is directed against both of General Kuropatkin's flanks.

JAPS LOST 63 IN 2-HOUR FIGHT

TOKIO, June 3.—A Russian force of infantry, cavalry and artillery from the north reached Lichiatun, near Port Adams, after two hours' fight with the Japanese. The cavalry retired northward. The Japanese losses were sixty-three.

RUSS. MUTINEERS SHOT.

LONDON, June 3.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Odessa says that seven infantrymen at Poltava and five at Kremenchug were courtmartialled and shot for leading a mutinous demonstration against sending their regiments to the Far East, shortly before the Czar's recent tour of inspection.

GIRL TOOK TRINKETS IGNORED JEWELRY

her person when she was searched by the matron at the station house.

Mrs. Pray, when seen at her handsome home, to-day, said:

Defends Her Daughter.

"I know that my girl is innocent of the charges made against her. She has always been an upright young woman and a Christian. She was always a help and comfort to me. I am an invalid and she stayed home with me at night and sacrificed her social pleasures.

"Her father died when she was one and a half years old. She was always fond of books and has been saving them for years. The police have overstepped their bounds in this case. They have taken articles that belong to me—articles that I bought and paid for with my own money.

"Many of the things they took from Lottie's room I gave her myself. Lottie tells me that she is innocent and I believe her. This is a great blow to us but my daughter will be vindicated. The reason that all of the articles found were from the firm of Moulton Bros. was because my daughter had their interests at heart, and we bought everything that we needed in their line from them."

Got Another Load.

The police paid a third visit to the home of Miss Walsh, at No. 280 Maple street, accompanied by Julian Mendlow and George C. Herbert. They secured another load of books and other articles claimed by Mendlow Brothers. The object of the visit of Mr. Herbert was to see if he could recognize anything in the domicile as having been his property prior to his failure and the subsequent disposal of the business. On his return to the police station he declared, Chief Burckes says, that he was positive that the paintings and engravings adorning the walls of the four residence were his. The police could not disturb them, however, because the search warrant was for property belonging to Mendlow Brothers.

Girl Friend Speaks.

Davenport first visited Lynn eight or nine years ago. About five years ago he had a piece of business in Boston, but it is understood that he failed to make it pay and gave it up. He was formerly in the employ of Conrad & Hamp, of Baltimore. The most intimate girl friend of Miss Lottie B. Walsh is Miss Mabel F. Ripley, now in charge of the soda counter in the Monroe street store of the Brockway-Smith Corporation, but who was formerly a clerk with Miss Walsh in the store of George C. Herbert. To the AMERICAN Miss Ripley said:

"Miss Walsh and myself have been firm friends for years. She has told me much about herself, probably more than she ever told her mother, for she did not confide everything to her mother. I am not going to abuse the confidence that she reposed in me.

Friend a Married Man.

"While I have sometimes wondered at her conduct I gave her credit for knowing what she was doing. I frequently saw her with Mr. Davenport. I have been aware of the fact that he is a married man for some time, but I am not going to say it Miss Walsh was also aware of it. Miss Walsh always seemed to have plenty of money when we were together, but I never questioned how she got it, and I was dumbfounded when I learned that she had been accused of robbing her employers, for she is the last person in the world that I would have dreamed could be dishonest. If these things they say about her are true it is a revelation to me."

It is said that Miss Walsh's name, which was found on the flyleaves of nearly one thousand books in her room, was written by another person than herself.

14 YEARS OLD, SHE FORGED CHECKS TO BUY RIBBONS

NEW YORK, June 3.—Amazed at the hardihood of fourteen-year-old Katie Schmidt, accused of forgeries and check raisings, attaches of the Children's Court are making an investigation. She lives with her mother at No. 400 West Fifty-first street. She said she forged to get pretty ribbons and bright dresses.

get the money downtown, and he took the check away.

"On the following Wednesday, the 24th, a clerk employed in Frank Burnham's grocery store, of No. 99 Meridian street, asked me if I had ordered ten dozen of the best eggs, at fifty cents a dozen, and four pounds of the best butter, which Charles E. Brigham had requested be charged to me and the goods delivered to him. I told the clerk that I knew nothing of the transaction.

"Before leaving the house on the 20th, Brigham asked my son Fred to go to Hudson, N. H., with him for a brief vacation, to visit Brigham's parents. My son was delighted at the prospect, and went upstairs to get shaved. While he was dressing Brigham left the house and did not return. I saw nothing more of him until March 1, on the morning of that day Brigham walked into the office of the Walworth Manufacturing Company in Federal street, Boston, and asked to see Fred.

WENT TO THE THEATRE.

"He afterwards invited Fred to lunch and later the two went to Kiehl's. Charles and Fred parted company at 11 o'clock on that evening. Charles saying that he was going to the Hampton House for the night. The next morning, March 2nd, he again called for Fred and they went to the Bowdoin Square Theatre, and that night they both came home and Charles remained here over night.

"On the following morning, March 3, he had breakfast at 8 o'clock, after which he asked me if he could board with me until he had secured work in Boston, and I told him he could. Shortly afterwards he left the house, and I have not seen him since."

Inspector Rooney of Police Headquarters began a search in the pawnshops of Boston to-day for the gold-filled watch which Brigham says he pawned in the North End for $14.

Brigham's alibi is doubted by the police of Boston. Instead of registering at the Hampton House in Haymarket square on the night of February 29 and March 1, Edwards says he did not register there until March 5.

The Hotel Register Alibi.

Police inspectors acting under instruction of Chief Watts, visited the Hampton House to-day and carefully examined the hotel register, and compared specimen's of Brigham's handwriting with the name C. E. Edwards, which Brigham insists he inscribed on the register March 1.

John Harris, the night clerk at the Hampton House, was closely questioned by the officers, but he refused to be convinced that Brigham had ever been a guest at the hotel. He was shown several photographs of the alleged murderer, but he was unable to identify them.

Clerk Haviland said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"There was no such person as Charles Edwards, or any one who looks like the pictures of Brigham which I have seen, in the Hampton House on March 1. On March 5 there was a man who registered at the Hampton House as C. E. Edwards. That man, however, did not look like Brigham, and I do not believe that the man under arrest in Lewiston was ever in this hotel.

HE ADMITS FORGERY.

Brigham is under indictment in Portsmouth for both forgery and the murder of Mrs. Marshall. He has admitted that he committed the forgery, having signed the name of his father in several checks.

"I first knew that the police were looking for me when I was in Boston," he said to the Lewiston police. "I was afraid of the results of the forgery case, and would not give myself up, although I had nothing to do with committing the murder.

TO HIDE HIS IDENTITY.

"I knew Mrs. Smith. I had worked near where she lived for Charles Steel, for about three years. At one time she kept house for Steel. I first heard of the murder in Boston on March 3. I read it in a newspaper. I saw I was charged with the murder and should have gone and proven myself innocent if it had not been for the forgeries. I felt that I could keep out of the way and hide my identity."

Brigham was arrested on information furnished the police of Lewiston by a man who had ridden with him on a boat from Boston to Portland. Later the man saw Brigham's pictures in the newspapers and notified the police after seeing him again in the streets of Lewiston. Brigham gave the name of Charles Edwards when arrested, but finally admitted his identity, confessed that he had committed forgeries, but strenuously denied that he was a murderer.

Brigham is a native of Hudson, N. H., where his father and brothers live. He comes of good parents, but has led a dissolute life. In his narrative to the police he said:

"The papers say I was at the Smith place the night before the murder and that we had an argument because I wanted to rent the farm and that was the reason I committed the murder. I never had any argument about renting the farm. The last time I was at Mrs. Smith's was on Thursday, February 25. I was there because it was the time I left there and went to Lowell. Previous to that I was at Mrs. Smith's house twice, and never have been in New Hampshire since, as I went direct from Lowell to Boston.

STORY OF THE CRIME.

Mrs. Smith was nearly seventy years old and lived alone with her aged brother, John D. K. Marshall, on his farm in Windham. On the night of February 29 her brother retired first, and the next morning on arising he was horrified to find his sister stretched out on the threshold of her room, murdered.

Mrs. Smith had evidently been awakened by the noise of some one moving about and had got up to investigate. As she stepped into the hall she was struck down with a heavy pinch bar, and it is thought she received her fatal wounds as she attempted to rush blows on her until she was a mass of flesh and blood. The murderer secured between $50 and $70 from a trunk and got away.

On the night of March 3 Inspector Burke of the Lowell Sheriff's office, of Rockingham county, N. H., to the house of Brigham's aunt, Mrs. Sleeper, at No. 196 Sumner street, East Boston. Brigham had been traced there.

Mrs. Sleeper's son Fred said Brigham was at the house the night before, March 2, slept with him and had gone away in the morning. He had some money and a check for $25, which he said he was going to have cashed.

EXPRESS CO. DRIVERS OUT

The freight handlers' strike in the marine department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has affected the express companies, says a dispatch from New York to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Nineteen drivers, as many helpers and about thirty clerks employed by the Metropolitan Express Company quit work there because of the removal of an agent at the depot at Bay and Washington streets.

President Curran, of the International Freight Handlers' Union, said to-day that he had paid out $10,000 from a fund of $15,000, which he has on hand, to aid the men on strike. At a meeting of the strikers it was voted to remain out if the strike lasts six weeks more.

The railroad officials still refuse to take the strikers back and are doing the best they can to handle the freight with nonunion men.

PRAYER-SAYING CAT "BOSS" IS MISSING

"Boss," the pride of Hotel Clarendon, the handsome Angora cat who always said his prayers before going to bed, is lost. Recently thieves entered Mrs. L. F. Sinclair's apartments and let "Boss" out on the street. This taste of liberty was sweet, so he treated himself to a "personally conducted" vacation. If you see a big, yellow, long-haired Thomas cat with black freckles on his face, it's "Boss."

HYDE PARK SHY A CHIEF STILL

Turnkey Martin J. Barrett, of Norfolk county jail, Dedham, has decided he will not be chief of police of Hyde Park.

"Not for a minute," said Turnkey Barrett to the BOSTON AMERICAN this morning.

Chairman Edwin C. Jenney, of the Hyde Park Selectmen, told the BOSTON AMERICAN over the 'phone this morning that the board was still waiting to hear from Mr. Barrett, with hopes he would accept.

"I don't understand that," said Barrett. "I told Mr. Jenney plainly yesterday afternoon I had decided not to accept the office. I stand upon the job."

The board had offered Barrett a boost of $200 over the former salary. It offered it "unanimously" through the civil service. It represented that the office would be glad, sweet dreams, with no politics.

Town politics have raised Cain in Hyde Park this year. The Board of Selectmen came in with four new members out of five, and the fifth, Chairman Jenney, resigned Tuesday night. Mr. Wragg is a deputy sheriff of Norfolk County, and court crier at Dedham jail.

The Selectmen took an informal vote on asking Barrett to come in. The vote passed, 3 to 2. A $200 raise, or $1,500 a year and fees, was also put on the hook to attract the prospective.

It now looks as though the Hyde Park Selectmen would have to go further afield for a police chief. They can't appoint one from the police force. The experienced officers won't take it and the inexperienced ones can't get it.

HARVARD POOR LOSER, SAYS PRINCETON

Tigers Will Demand Explanation of Charges That They Were Rude at Ball Game.

NO APOLOGY FORTHCOMING

Special to the Boston American.

PRINCETON, June 3.—The charge made editorially and in a communication in Harvard Crimson of Wednesday last that Princeton stopped the bounds of good sport by incessant cheering with the intention of rattling the Harvard players during the last three innings of Saturday's game, has been angrily commented upon by undergraduates here, and comment charges against Harvard are freely made.

No apology is forthcoming from Princeton. On the contrary, Harvard will be asked for an explanation of the charges denounced by undergraduates as untrue that Coach Hillebrand was on the coaching lines during the ninth inning. It is asserted that Hillebrand did not leave the players' bench during the entire game, while Coach Frantz, of Harvard, during Princeton's turns in the field, stood behind the catcher to get a line on Byram's curves.

Counter Charge.

Princetonians also charge that last year at Cambridge, when Harvard began to gain on Princeton in the ninth inning, the Harvard rooters, thinking there was a win, let forth a bedlam of noise, and kept it up until the end of the game, in the hope of rattling Princeton. In 1903 Princeton had the same experience at Cambridge, and the present charge is regarded as evening with extremely bad grace from Harvard. It is declared by the undergraduates here to be the wail of a poor loser, seeking excuses, rather than a legitimate protest against illegitimate sport.

Only Dispute Over Ball.

The Daily Princetonian has suspended publication during the final examinations, and it is not likely that there will be any reply to the charges contained in the Harvard Crimson until the end of the week. Neither Captain Stevens nor any of these authorities will discuss the matter for publication.

It is said that members of the Harvard team admitted to several Princeton men after the game that they were outplayed. The only misunderstanding was at the end of the game over the possession of the ball, which has been satisfactorily explained to Captain Clarkson.

ELIAS SERVANT TELLS OF QUEER ORGIES OF HER BLACK MISTRESS

SNAPSHOT OF MRS. HANNAH ELIAS.

ARREST TO BE MADE TO-DAY OF WOMAN FOR BLACKMAILING JOHN PLATT.

MRS. HANNAH ELIAS believed herself a Cleopatra. Her hold over white men, causing them to give her unlimited supplies of money, probably gave her the notion. She was always having some one read to her things about the enslaver of Marc Antony.

She had a scented fountain in her room and her servants, dressed in Egyptian costumes, fanned her with huge feather-duster arrangements she had bought in a Japanese place downtown.

—MRS. BELLE MARSHALL.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Like a strange tale from the Orient is that of the life led by Hannah Elias, the negress, who has been sued by John R. Platt to recover almost three-quarters of a million dollars she has lavished on her. In the mansion on Central Park West dwelt an uneducated negress, in whose veins were intermingled strains of Indian, Caucasian and African blood, and whose possession of vast sums of money led her into the oddest possible paths in the effort to spend it.

Scenes in which she represented Cleopatra, surrounded by servants dressed as Egyptians, alternated with drunken orgies and meals brought from negro restaurants in West Fifty-third street, and eaten from the tin pails in which they were purchased.

Mrs. Belle Marshall, a white woman, living at No. 201 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street, was housekeeper in the Elias house for three years, and during that time noted many of the queer phases of life within. Her life was certainly an exciting one. This is her story.

BY BELLE MARSHALL.

By far the most interesting person in that house was the Japanese butler, Kato. He was employed about the time Hannah Elias moved in. She had a Japanese craze at that time, and had fitted up one of them in the place. Finally she picked out Kato as the one she wanted to keep and let the others go.

Kato a Favorite.

Kato was a favorite with her. A large part of the money she got went to Kato. He refused to wear his butler's uniform before he had been in the place long and became a member of the household. She bought him all sorts of fine clothes, and on one occasion gave him $10,000 worth of diamonds. She also gave him money enough to go to the Paris exposition and furnished him with a valet.

Her most foolish delusion, however, was that which led her to believe she was a sort of Cleopatra. Where she ever got the Cleopatra idea is hard to understand, but the fact that her hold over white men caused them to give her unlimited supplies of money probably furnished the basis for the notion. She could read after a fashion, but she could not read with anything approaching literature that was above the dime novel standard and consequently she was always having some one read to her things about the enslaver of Marc Antony. She carried her notion into an imitation that was as near the original as she could figure it out.

She had a scented fountain in her room, and used to make her servants dress in Egyptian costumes and stand around fanning her with huge feather-duster arrangements that she bought in a Japanese place down town.

Used to Amuse Her.

This by-play used to amuse her wonderfully. She really had not many ways of entertaining herself, notwithstanding her vast fortune, for she could not get out into the street without having her feelings hurt.

The one thing that caused her to grow frightened in the night is to have some one recognize her as a negress.

In order to prevent things of this sort she had a wig made for herself, and when she did she traveled in a closed carriage. She never went into the street unless even had a complete dentsy outfit in her hand, chair and all, in which to ride, owing to a dentist's. She never went into a theatre, although she was an enthusiastic lover of the drama of a certain sort, but she described herself this simple reason, through fear of having some one recognize her as a negress.

She paid $200 for the pompadour wig she wears. Under that wig was a mass of half as kinky as any ever seen upon the head of a negress. She would care paid any amount of money to have straightened out the kinks in her wool, and did pay out an enormous amount to a man who said that he could change her color to white.

Once, when a boy went past the house singing "Coon, coon, coon. Oh wish mah color would fade," she almost had a spasm of rage. That song hurt her more than anything else.

Tried to Bleach Her.

The man that offered to bleach her was a wonder. She paid him $100 a visit for two months, and had to wear a mask all the time. At the end of that time the mask came off and she was of just the same mulatto tint. She was wild with rage that time; but the doctor had the money, and there was no way of getting it back. She hated white women in a way that gave her great satisfaction in employing them in the house in order to humiliate them. I have seen her hire white girls and after a few days call them to her and dress them up in fine clothes and hang jewelry all over them.

She would then tell them that the clothes and the gems were theirs, and tell them to go home to their folks and show them what she had done for them. At the door Kato would catch them and strip off the clothes and the jewelry, while she listened, convulsed with laughter at their cries of rage.

She was always buying books of etiquette. It was amusing to her to get at home and attempt to follow out all the instructions in the books. Frequently she would have all her servants dine with her, making them dress for the occasion. Then she would have a dinner that was as formal as a Newport affair for an hour or so. Then the liquor having circulated freely, the function would degenerate into something not pleasant to describe.

Her Tin Pail Meals.

As a contrast to these affairs were the tin pail meals she used to eat. Every little while she would send one of her servants down to the negro section to which she used to live with a tin pail to buy her a mess of "possum" stew or fried fish such as she was accustomed to in the old days when she kept a boarding house. This she used to eat out of the pail.

She had a library full of books, but never read them. She used to read dime novels and detective tales and was always fancying herself the heroine of some of the stories she read.

Once when an Italian professor tried to get her to marry him, she fancied that he was trying to marry her to lure her to Italy and kill her in a dungeon keep. When he got fast enough she was making long jumps and running fast.

Although she had cases of champagne always in the cellar, she usually drank gin, and when she had drunk more than much of it she would entertain all the servants along back and wing dances and jigs. She was one of the best negro dancers I have ever seen. There are few on the stage who can equal her. Her expenses were pretty heavy, and I don't know whether she had any money left or not.

UP TO MAYOR TO GIVE DAY TO FIREMEN

Cry of Economy and Colonel Russell's Opposition to be Reckoned On.

WARD 11 AGAINST CHANGE

Only the veto of Mayor Collins now can prevent Boston firemen from spending more time with their wives and children. Unless he vetoes the order so vigorously supported by the BOSTON AMERICAN in the Legislature and city Council, giving the firemen one day off in five, it will go into effect at once.

It was passed in concurrence by the Common Council by the overwhelming vote of 63 to 4. Councilman Pierce, of the Back Bay, where the dwellings have more leisure than anywhere else, fought hard to defeat the measure, but his colleagues paid no attention to his argument that such an enactment might mean in Boston a repetition of the Iroquois fire horror. He said:

"It is a matter of common knowledge that the day after a man has his day off is his worst day. He is less efficient than on any other day during the week. By increasing the number of days off this order will decrease the efficiency of the department. The catastrophe in Chicago was due to the fact that certain public officials failed to do their duty. Do we want to go on record as decreasing fire protection in Boston?"

Hitherto firemen got one day off in eight, and Councilman Pierce said Fire Commissioner Russell is emphatically opposed to the change, claiming that it will impair department efficiency.

Firemen and politicians are wondering what Mayor Collins will do. It is claimed by Councilman Pierce that the change will increase the expenses of the department $85,000 a year, and, as Mayor Collins has said that the city is too poor to put more benches in the parks, citizens are speculating if he will take sides with the Fire Commissioner.

KEEPS WATCH ON DAUGHTER

Special to the Boston American.

DEDHAM, June 3.—Charles C. Sanderson, the aged bridegroom with a young wife, is anxiously wondering what his daughter, Mrs. Ella A. Cheney, will do next. Her attempt to have her elderly father adjudged insane failed.

"Let me tell you, young man," Mr. Sanderson said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "old age, together with money, is not a happy combination."

Mr. Sanderson married Mrs. Carrie M. Johnson, a young widow, March 17. He has considerable property, and his daughter alleged he was unfit to manage it. On testimony of Dr. Jelly, the alienist, that Mr. Sanderson was perfectly sane, the case has just been dismissed.

His wife looks out for his comfort continually, but Mr. Sanderson is not as happy as he had hoped to be.

"It seems has a long story, but really it is a short one," said Mr. Sanderson. "You see the first Mrs. Sanderson died about nine years ago and naturally the old house seemed kind of lonesome like. Of course, there was my only daughter Ella, but things were not always pleasant.

"Well, we got along somehow, but I heard company. Two years ago I began taking the present Mrs. Sanderson to ride, as she was one of my neighbors.

"Mrs. Sanderson lived directly back of my house. It was perfectly natural that we should see much of one another.

"As the time passed by I often thought how nice it would be to get married again and then the lonely days would be made happy. But this trouble has made it such a disappointment."

LEAVITT FREE, JURY VERDICT "NOT GUILTY"

A verdict of not guilty on each of the forty-six counts in which Elmer E. Leavitt, former financial manager of the shoe and rubber firm known as L. S. Foster, was charged with the larceny of $50,000 each from the National Union and National Exchange Banks, on commercial paper of the firm, was returned to-day by the jury in the Superior Court before Judge De Courcy.

The jury retired at noon, remaining out all night, reporting when court convened this morning.

The finding of the jury in each of the forty-six counts was read. Leavitt leaned against a railing until thirty of the counts had been read and then collapsed from weariness into a seat.

Leavitt said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I have no statement to make, except that it is very satisfactory to be found not guilty forty-six times."

Leavitt was the financial man and office head of Lamkin & Foster, which failed in 1903.

The evidence showed that March, 1902, the firm had an account at the National Bank of Redemption, where W. S. B. Stevens was an assistant cashier. Stevens later sought a position at the National Union Bank under President Hooper. Mr. Stevens introduced Leavitt to President Hooper, and the latter agreed to give Lamkin & Foster the use of credit up to $50,000 on their paper if statements of the firm's condition were given. The same arrangement was made with President Harold Murdock, of the National Exchange Bank.

In a year the loans were made to Leavitt's firm in amounts ranging from a little over one hundred dollars up to $50,000. In June the firm went into bankruptcy and an auditor went over the books. He found that the firm had not been in the condition, which was set out in Leavitt's statement, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Leavitt left the city, but last Fall returned and surrendered himself.

PERDICARIS A VICTIM OF USURERS' HATE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Ion Perdicaris, the American citizen who has been abducted and held for ransom by bandits of Morocco, is the victim of the revenge of the money lenders of Tangier, against whom he has been waging war for twenty years.

Fighting for a score of years the money sharks who ground down their victims by means of a debtor's law, Perdicaris himself has fallen a victim. His abduction is a plot of the Moors, and behind it is the strange story of a lifetime given to the cause of suffering humanity. From unimpeachable sources comes information revealing the cause for the abduction of Perdicaris.

Mr. Perdicaris has not been in Tangier long before the absolute corruption in the city and in the entire country of Morocco attracted his attention. One abuse which struck him most forcibly was the practice of usury lending, and the grasp in which the usurers of the city held their victims.

The leaders, for the most part, were either office-holders or persons "higher up."

Charges were trumped up against Perdicaris, and he was cast into a living tomb under ground. After a month of suffering of the most horrible kind he escaped and fled to America. An expose of the persons responsible for his imprisonment followed. Through his efforts and representations the Minister of Finance was restored to power. Mr. Perdicaris returned to Tangier and resumed his position as host to all who came to partake of his hospitality. Among the natives who are not drank at his table were Raisuli and Kaid Maclean.

In late years the band of corrupt officials who had been scattered by the efforts of Mr. Perdicaris and the Minister of Finance have been returning to power in Tangier. It is said they secured the services of Raisuli, since turned bandit, to carry from his home Mr. Perdicaris and Varley.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN HAVE NOVEL PARTY

The eleventh anniversary of the Peabody New England Home for Crippled Children was celebrated at the institution, Hyde Park, with a Japanese piazza party. The tables were presided over by President Mrs. Herbert A. Joslin, Mrs. E. C. Morton, Miss Anna C. Ward, Mrs. H. C. Babcock, Mrs. E. F. Boyd, the Misses Boyd, Mrs. Emma Edgerly, Mrs. R. C. Brown, Mrs. William H. Gray and Mrs. H. F. Leonard. On the committee were Mrs. Alison S. Whittemore, Mrs. Robert Bleakie and Mrs. Edward B. Kellogg.

CAPT. COLLINS AND WIFE TO LIVE IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., June 3.—Newport's cottage colony hear that Captain and Mrs. Glen Collins, who was Natalie Schenck, have decided to come to Newport for the season instead of going abroad.

While the couple were on their honeymoon trip in Honolulu, Mrs. Collins met with an accident and this changed their plans for a trip around the world.

MRS. WILLIE K. MADE $200,000

Mrs. Willie K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has given her sister, Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, a practical illustration of how to make $200,000 in three weeks without turning her hand. Even with her $30,000,000, the sum of $200,000 is pleasant.

About the middle of May Mrs. Oelrichs sold all of her San Francisco real estate, with the exception of her Fairmount home property and a few other pieces, to a syndicate of Golden Gate men, headed by Robert Sprechels, the sugar king. The price received was $2,000,000, the largest single cash transaction in real estate that had ever taken place in Frisco.

The syndicate began subdiling for the Vanderbilt real estate in San Francisco. Mrs. Willie K. knew that the syndicate had to have her property and held off for a bigger price. Now she has about closed the deal for $2,800,000, or $200,000 more than Mrs. Oelrichs got.

SNATCH BABES FROM FLAMES

Special to the Boston American.

HAVERHILL, June 3.—Richard Feisel and Charles Phillip are the acknowledged heroes of the city for saving the lives of two children at a fire at the store of S. N. Ledoux on Essex street. The families of Feisel and Joseph Roy occupy the two upper floors of the building. The occupants of the house had been brought out when Mrs. Roy suddenly noticed that her two infant children were missing.

Feisel and Phillip groped their way through the smoke to the topmost floor, where the two children had been sleeping. The little ones were found almost unconscious from the dense smoke. It was with the greatest difficulty that the two heroes reached the open air with their charges, as the stairs were blazing.

FLIRTING ON CUNARD LINE SHIPS MUST BE ONLY WITH CAPTAIN

The bewitching American girl crossing the water by the Cunard line cannot flirt with the fascinating steamer officers any more—except the captain.

The Cunard management has dealt Cupid a sort thrust. Steamer officers are forbidden "any social intercourse with the passengers under their charge." This does not apply to the captain, however.

Only those who have crossed the water as steamer passengers can realize what this order means. A pretty girl, a handsome, young skilled officer, a moonlight night, a tuneful band, a moon-lit sea and the low, lavish sweet on the water around a ship's bow. Nothing that most fatal combination for love making Dan Cupid can arrange. It is dangerous and nearly always fatal. Most of the victims fall in love.

The male passengers don't like it. The officers cut them out. The unattractive girl passengers disapprove. The pretty girls also applaud the officers. Flimsy complaints were made to the Cunard management that too much flirting was done by the dashing young officers. The company suddenly discovered that was bad for discipline. Hence the order.

BROKER BOUND OVER.

FITCHBURG, June 3.—James A. Shea, late manager of the Metropolitan Sec. Exchange, charged with larceny, has been bound over to the Grand Jury in $500.

SAWED FLOOR TO SAVE HIS LIFE

Except for a pair of badly bruised legs, Smith Vinskey lies in the Relief Hospital apparently but little the worse for hanging head downward in an elevator shaft for nearly an hour. His rescuers sawed through the floor of the car to reach him.

Vinskey, who is a foreman in the tailoring shop of the Simmons Clothing Co., No. 9 Friend street, started to descend in the elevator from the fifth floor. He stepped off the landing before the car reached him. The elevator caught him by the legs just as he was about to plunge headlong down the shaft and pinned him on it as a vise.

The man's screams brought his fellow employes. How to release him was a problem. Raising the elevator would plunge him down the shaft; lowering it would crush his legs. Finally it was decided to saw through the floor of the elevator, and he was drawn up in safety.

FULTON, SUBMERGED, FIRES TORPEDOES

NEWPORT, R. I., June 3.—The second day's government trial of the submarine boat Fulton was devoted to the firing of torpedoes while submerged and just awash. Two torpedoes were fired while the Fulton was entirely under water. The torpedoes had an average range of 1,700 yards.

REV. FRITCH TO FIGHT ON

"The jury did not distinguish between an intimate friendship founded on a high moral and intellectual plane and some of those other unfortunate intimacies between the sexes," said the Rev. W. S. Fritch in the Superior Court at Brockton against him for $10,000 damages in the suit of Charles A. Whittemarsh, who charged the young minister with having alienated his wife's affections.

The Rev. Mr. Fritch's parishioners are indignant at the result, and his counsel has announced that he will appeal.

In spite of his wife's declaration that she loves him, Whittemarsh says that while it is for her husband, Mr. Whittmarsh declares that he still loves her and believes she will come back to him. The woman has given no indication that she will do so.

The minister to-day received many messages of confidence, and some of the wealthy members of his congregation assured him of all the financial aid he desired in fighting the case in court. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter he said:

"I do not think that the testimony justified the verdict. If I was guilty of alienating the affections of Mrs. Whittmarsh, for which I was sued for $50,000, I can't see why the verdict was for such a peculiar amount as $1,234.

TRAVIS VICTORIOUS IN FINAL FOR THE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

ment to most of the golfers of the United Kingdom. Travis is an Australian, but long a resident of the United States.

Windeler Bets on Travis.

George Herbert Windeler, of the Country Club, Boston, is here rooting for Travis, and confident that the American champion would win. Mr. Windeler, odd to say, is an Englishman by birth, but an American by adoption, and President of the United States Golf Association. He says Travis is showing winning form.

He is glad to see Americans put in a position, by Travis's playing, of coming to England every year for championship honors, for Scotchmen and Englishmen will then go to the championship meets of the United States Golf Association.

Bets Are on Travis.

The betting at the start was five to four on Travis. The second round will be played this afternoon. Victory for Travis was looked upon by English experts as a foregone conclusion.

The ease with which the American vanquished all his opponents has caused considerable comment, as he disposed of the hopes of H. H. Hilton, the former amateur and open champion, and Horace G. Hutchinson with ease.

Blackwell a Hard Player.

Blackwell is probably the most consistent long driver the world has ever seen. He was born in 1858, and began to play almost as soon as he could walk. He had won a prize with 104 at the age of thirteen, at school in St. Andrews. He holds the record for long drives.

Mr. Blackwell is a perfect type of athletic strength. He is six feet in height, with enormously powerful forearm and wrist and every ounce of power is put into the stroke. It is nothing uncommon to see him outdrive Andrew Kirkaldy fully forty yards even when the professional hits one of his best. Ordinary hazards do not exist for Mr. Blackwell.

He plays with long, heavy and stiff clubs, and his terrible cleek was once described as a weaver's beam with an old boot at the end of it. Two of his brothers drive nearly as far as himself, and one of them, W. F. Blackwell, was a magnificent thrower, having when a boy at Glenalmond, thrown the cricket ball 125 yards. The youngest, Ernley Blackwell, is well known as a first-class player.

31 COUSINS ARE TO FIGHT

The thirty-one cousins of aged Miss Elizabeth Kimball, of Peabody, who were practically disinherited in her will, have decided to pool their interests and begin a contest against giving the estate to Harrison Whittemore, of Brent street, Dorchester, the lover of Miss Kimball's youth. Whittemore is now sixty-seven.

According to the terms of the will Mr. Whittemore receives property to the value of $80,000. At his death the estate will be divided between the American Board, the Woman's Board of Missions and the Congregational Home Missionary Society in equal shares.

The two boxes of love letters that Miss Kimball kept during all the years since the breaking off her engagement to Mr. Whittemore promises to be a departure to fight in the Civil War will be involved and may possibly be brought into court, although the wishes of the dead woman that they be turned over to her aged lover without being disturbed are clearly expressed in the will.

THE CHAPERON ON SOCIETY

J. Montgomery Sears Is to Build New Summer Home at Bar Harbor.

LOW-PARMELEE WEDDING

By the Chaperon.

I HEAR J. Montgomery Sears is to erect a new Summer place at Bar Harbor. The Searses have a charming place on the shore drive at present, but I understand that it is to be torn down and a more pretentious mansion erected. Their present Summer home there is one of the old mansions of the place, and while a very charming house, is hardly up to date. When the work will begin the Searses, I understand, are to go abroad to finish out the season.

I wonder if harn parties are to be as popular this Summer as one would be led to hope after the one given by Surgeon-General Otis H. Marion last night, at his home on Harvard avenue, Allston?

It was really a delightful affair, so unconventional. Everybody seemed to be in for a good time, and there was lots of fun not scheduled by the host. The barn looked very pretty, decorated with Japanese lanterns. The rural effect was carried out by piles of corn "shocks" and barn lanterns. The music was furnished by a hurdy-gurdy, and the folks danced to that.

The dresses were quaint and attractive, and some smell old gowns were worn. The men appeared in overalls and jumpers that really looked too spick and span for use, and heavy boots which made dancing in some cases a laughable effort.

Rejoining attendants from the Low-Parmelee wedding at New Haven have a lot of pretty things to say about the affair. They tell that the bride looked stunning in a beautiful imported creation of white satin, trimmed with a veil of duchesse lace. Her pretty head was surmounted with a veil caught up with orchids. The couple stood beneath a yellowed and tattered American flag, which was carried by the groom's father through the Civil War. It was a military wedding as far as the ring in the service.

Most of the attendants on the couple were military men, and they were resplendent in their full uniforms. The Rev. Newman Smyth, a member of the Yale corporation, performed the ceremony, and Henry F. Parmelee, the bride's brother, gave her away. The best man was Dr. Stone, of Boston, and the ushers were Captain William Hopkins, U. S. N.; Captain Jolly, U. S. N.; Naval Constructor Henry Williams and Captain Smedley Butler, U. S. M. C., all of Boston.

Mrs. Idah McG. Gibson, who has been in the city all winter, having apartments at the Kenilworth, in Brookline, left this morning for Toledo, where she will visit her sister for the season.

Boston is going to get a glimpse of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, for he has plans for a coaching trip from Newport to Boston later in the season. Mr. Vanderbilt is anxious to see just what time he can make between the two points, and it is probable that there will be some pretty fast driving. He will be entertained, it is understood, by the Hollis Hunnewells at Wellesley.

HEARST Schoolboy Teams of Athletes Will Travel on Pullman CAR To the St. Louis World's Fair and Train Is TO CARRY From High and Grammar Schools 16 Each—Total— 32 BOYS

Age Limits Are 15 and 19 Years, for Grammar and High Schools, as Fixed by Fair Committee, and All Entries Close June 25.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN is able to announce to the schoolboy athletes of Boston that Congressman William Randolph Hearst will take a Pullman car load of boys to the World's Fair at St. Louis to compete in the games to be held there on July 4, 5 and 6.

This will afford the committee in charge of the matter a chance to select two teams of at least sixteen boys each to make the trip—one from the Grammar Schools, the other from the High Schools. These boys should be selected so that their names can be forwarded to the Fair Committee at St. Louis before June 25, which is the last date that entries will be received there.

Although it will prove a great hardship to many of the schools' athletes in this city that the age limits are fixed at fifteen and nineteen years, that is the decision of the Fair Athletic Committee, and it will have to be abided by. This is the decision of the committee.

Elementary schoolboys must be under fifteen years of age on the Fourth of July. If their fifteenth birthday comes on the fifth of July they are eligible, but they are not if it comes on the Fourth. The same rule applies to the High School boys, who must be under nineteen.

All of the boys must be vouched for by the principals of the schools they are from. In another column is printed an official list of the events to be run off at the Fair. Boston should have entries in every event.

Growing Demand Among Boys.

Although many of the Boston educators do not go in, to a great extent, for athletics in Grammar Schools, there has been a growing demand among the boys themselves that they be given a better show, and some of the principals are doing what they can in this direction.

The boys should look over the list of events for the Grammar School boys under portunity been accorded the boys," is the sentiment of teachers and pupils and parents.

EDWARD F. O'DAY, Submaster of the Dudley School:

"I am delighted to hear the news. Mr. Ellery H. Clark in approving the AMERICAN'S offer has stated the facts plainly and squarely, and, as an enthusiast in properly conducted athletics for schoolboys, I myself can simply second Mr. Clark's remarks. The educational advantages derived from a trip to St. Louis will undoubtedly broaden the minds of the contesting athletes."

JAMES L. WALSH, Chief Instructor of the city's gymnasiums:

"I am certain Mr. Hearst will accomplish a great deal of good and I hope he

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETES PRACTICING FOR ST. LOUIS.

In the picture on the left is shown three Roxbury High School boys, just as they finish a 100-yard dash. On the lower left hand are a couple of Dorchester High lads in a 220-yard run. In the upper right-hand picture M. W. Burlingam is making a high jump, and H. R. Seeley is putting the twelve-pound shot in the lower right hand.

ROXBURY APPLAUDS MR. HEARST'S PLAN

The announcement of William Randolph Hearst's offer to the schoolboys of the city was received with the greatest enthusiasm by the athletes throughout Roxbury. Already the teachers say that the proposition has revived interest among the boys in their school work, so anxious are they to make a good impression during the last season. There have been several initiation meetings in the various schools of the district and especially in the Roxbury Latin School, where the relay team is considered the fastest quartet in interscholastic circles this season.

Further developments are awaited with much excitement, and organizations are being formed in the majority of the schools.

Never in the history of schoolboy athletics in this city has such an opportunity been accorded the boys as the present. Boston will select the right ones."

GEORGE W. PARKER, Probation Officer.

"I think it a magnanimous offer on Mr. Hearst's part, and I feel sure Mr. Hearst will have the right boys at the exposition."

DR. WILLIAM H. DEVINE:

"I think it a good idea on Mr. Hearst's part."

FREDERICK J. SHEEHAN:

"I believe Mr. Hearst the proper man to carry out a great idea of this kind."

CHARLES CURTIS, Druggist:

"I feel sure it is a good idea and hope that Mr. Hearst will send a successful delegation of boys."

JAMES A. GALLIVAN, Street Commissioner:

"I am heartily in favor of Mr. Hearst's brilliant idea."

COUNCILLOR M. J. SULLIVAN:

"I believe Mr. Hearst is doing something that will be a benefit to boys in general for years to come."

SENATOR D. V. McISAAC:

"I believe the idea a splendid one and am glad that Mr. Hearst is the man to promote a plan of this kind, which will be such a benefit to the schoolboys."

ROOSEVELT NO FOE OF TRUSTS

W. J. BRYAN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 3.—The failure of the President and Attorney-General Knox to follow up the merger decision by prosecuting the trusts is commented on in Mr. Bryan's Commoner to-day, as follows:

"It is admitted that the injunction proceedings have provided the people with no relief. Since those proceedings were commenced the beef trust has, on the one hand, increased the prices it pays to the cattle raiser, and, on the other hand, has increased the prices it demands from the beef consumer. The criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law remains on the statute books utterly ignored by Mr. Roosevelt's law officers. It is not at all likely that the Attorney-General will give consideration to affidavits on file in his office in civil proceedings against the beef trust to suppose should address the Attorney-General on this line, but it is not likely that he would pay any attention to it. As Mr. Knox himself has said, the administration does not propose to 'run amuck,' which, being interpreted, means that the trust magnates have nothing to fear at the hands of the Roosevelt administration."

BOSTON ACTIVE IN PEACE CAUSE

Special to the Boston American.

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., June 3.—Boston is well represented at the conference on international arbitration held here. The Boston Chamber of Commerce is at the head of thirty-seven business organizations that have permanent committees on international arbitration.

Edwin D. Mead in his address stated that within the last century 200 disputes had been settled by arbitration, and in no case had any nation refused a judgment so rendered.

E. G. Preston, secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, told of the successful work of the committee of 100 of that body to secure the prompt action of business organizations throughout New England in favor of an arbitration treaty with Great Britain.

The Boston Merchants' Association was represented by Samuel B. Capen, who said the committee of 100 had sent out 300 letters and received favorable replies from all except one.

The Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom, of Springfield, formerly of Boston, declared that an appeal to the sense of justice was much more effective than an argument based on the cost of war.

Other prominent speakers were: Commissioner McFarland, of Washington; Professor John Bassett Moore, of Columbia University; B. Faxgher, of the National Association of Manufacturers; F. H. Jackson, of the Board of Trade of Providence; A. B. Chandler, a director of the Postal Telegraph Company; Baron Kentaro, of Japan; Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut.

MEET DEATH ON TRESTLE.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 3.—Seven men clung to the trestle bridge at Henderson, Ky., while a passenger train killed two of their companions, and a third jumped fifty feet below to his death. The dead are: J. Stutts, Wiley Blackburn and William Scherer.

EPIDEMIC OF BLOOD POISON

Special to the Boston American.

GARDNER, June 3.—An epidemic of blood poisoning has broken out among the people of this town engaged in chair making. All the men afflicted have been at work in the rattan departments. Several who have taken extra precautions are recovering slowly, but grave fears are entertained for the others.

Chair making is the chief industry. The general use of rattan was not taken up by the Gardner factories until about a year ago. Now the rattan departments are rushed with orders.

The poisoning is confined to the hands, but is unusually painful. The workmen cannot account for it except that the solution through which the cane is run is poorer than ever before, and the brine irritates a cut. In some cases the hands are swollen to double size.

KILL ENTERTAINMENT ORDER.

The Common Council has killed the order for a City Council committee to entertain G. A. R. members during the National Encampment here in August of veteral soldiers.

SAYS GAS DEAL DOUBLED PRICE

Representative Coulthurst, of Boston, appeared before the Legislative Committee on Rules in favor of his resolution requiring the Gas and Electric Light Commission to print the report of the experts on the valuation of the Boston companies, which were consolidated under the consolidation act last year.

Mr. Coulthurst said that the bill authorized consolidation under a fair valuation of the assets of each company taken into the consolidation. The par value of the capital stock of all the old companies, he said, was $40,000,000, but he had found that the consolidation valuation was about $21,000,000. This is considered wrong, and he felt that the matter should be thoroughly understood by the members of the Legislature and the people of Boston.

Chairman Barker, of the commission, said that the expense of printing would be about $750, and his board would not care to contract it unless directed to do so by the Legislature.

'SOUR GRAPES' FOR REDCOATS

Boston militiamen are much interested in the controversy that has arisen over the capture of the Palma trophy by the Americans a member of the Massachusetts team can team of riflemen in the recent contest in England. Sergeant Kiel of Wakefield was a member of the team.

General Bird W. Spencer, president of the National Rifle Association, has answered the charge of the Englishmen that the victory was won by the use of rifles with special barrels, in violation of the rules governing the matches. He says that members of the Yankee team had two rifles, both of government standard model, but that one of the guns had a special barrel, which conformed in every way to the new army rifling rule.

Lieutenant Jones, secretary of the winning team says the whole thing is a case of sour grapes.

MUST PAY OWN LAW BILL.

The Common Council has voted against paying Policeman Dennis J. McManus and William H. Burns $153.39 and $58.15, respectively, for expenses incurred by them in defending suits brought because of their acts as policemen.

JAPANESE WOMEN.

Examples of System.

THE Japanese do not believe in a "weaker sex." They believe in teaching women to be as strong as the men. This they accomplish by a system of training for the body known as Jiu Jitzu. First, their basis of all strength is a healthy stomach. Second, practicing deep breathing in the open air for at least fifteen minutes—standing with hands on hips. Then, exercises that strengthen heart, arms and legs—but never practising these to the point of great fatigue—taking time to it and increasing the exercise each day. This system followed up, puts the Japanese women on a par with the men so far as physical strength is concerned. Such methods of bringing up young girls would be wholesome for American mothers to practice—as in mature life health and strength depends so much on the early training. Women have themselves to blame for being "the weaker sex." Mentally she is man's equal; physically she is usually his inferior. The reason is that as a girl she usually does not take the exercise in the outdoor air that her more fortunate brother does; then she early develops a female weakness due to catching cold at some critical period, or to tight lacing or some carelessness. If the young girl is anemic and pale she is predisposed to such irregularities. The mother should advise her at such time and get some good medical work, like the "Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, M. D. If the young girl shows peculiar nervous symptoms, it would be well for the mother to write a personal letter to Dr. Pierce, and she will receive confidential advice from him without any charge, simply costing the postage stamp and paper.

"You may think I am only a fraud as I have not written to you recently," writes Mrs. Lucy Wolfinger, care of Mr. Markley, Thorp's Lane, (Roxburgh), Philadelphia, Penn'a, but I thought I would wait and see if I would have any return of my trouble. I find my local health remains good. You must remember I was a physical wreck when I first wrote to you, having been only five months out of the hospital after undergoing an operation and not getting much better. You answered my letter almost right away, for which I thank you most heartily, telling me to get your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' also 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Suppositories,' all of which I used and found that they were worth their weight in gold. I only weighed one hundred pounds last January, when I first wrote to you, but now my weight is one hundred and thirty-five pounds. I could do no work—the lightest kind was too much for me. Now we have a little vegetable garden which I take care of and do the housework for five, all myself. My friends are never through telling me how well I look. They say I am ten years younger in looks. My own family doctor says it is wonderful the change that has been made, so you see I have a great deal more to thank you for than I will ever be able to do; but I will always pray for your guidance and protection, and will always recommend your medicines. I do not think that any one could suffer more than I did. I took seven bottles of each kind of medicine and used one box each of the 'Lotion Tablets' and 'Suppositories.'"

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath, they cleanse and regulate the stomach, liver and bowels and produce permanent benefit and do not re-act on the system. One is a gentle laxative.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS should have a medical book handy, for knowledge is power. A standard work is The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, for the cloth-bound book, or 21 stamps for the paper-covered volume.

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

WILL TRY ONCE MORE TO PASS TROLLEY GRAB

Lobby Busy to Have Western Mass. Street Railway Bill Reconsidered.

SURE DEFEAT PREDICTED

The legislative lobby is trying hard to save the "Western Massachusetts street railway" bill.

An attempt to secure reconsideration is expected in the House to-day. By a vote of ninety-five to seventy-three, with sixteen pairs, the House voted down the bill when it came up for its third reading.

The watchful representatives who have been fighting the bill as an "iniquitous and flagrant grab" say this third-reading vote killed it. They declare that reconsideration will make the opposition even stronger. They say that many who were rounded up to vote for the bill will desert it now. Knowing they will be defeated, they will vote against the measure to get the credit of opposing it.

This bill to incorporate the Western Massachusetts Street Railway Company proposes to grant this company the right to buy and build street railway lines and to manufacture and sell electricity for heating and lighting purposes.

Representative Mellen A. Pingree, of Haverhill, chairman of the House Committee on Street Railways, said the bill was "safe and wise." He admitted in debate that it did depart from existing law.

Mr. Pingree is a former partner of Boyd B. Jones, of Haverhill. He is former counsel for the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill Street Railway Company. He was the famous beach ticket mayoralty candidate whom the fusion party in Haverhill vainly tried to defeat John T. Chase, Socialist, for re-election as mayor.

Opponents to the "trolley grab," as they call it, say the bill gives the company extraordinary powers. They say it could issue watered stock without limit, and could even, under provisions of this special legislation, form a gigantic trolley combination by gradual absorption of other companies in the State.

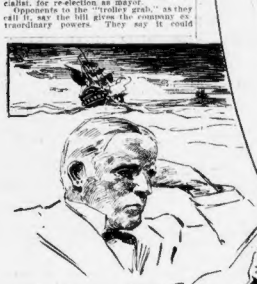
This morning the lobby was out in force for its reconsideration effort. Well known members of this "Third House" have been working hard for the "grab." But a call for reconsideration is expected to defeat the bill again by an opposition of 100 votes or more.

WINS BACK $26,000 PEARL NECKLACE

MRS. DULLES IS VINDICATED OF SMUGGLING; TREASURY AGENT LOSES JOB.

WINS SUIT FOR HER NECKLACE.

MRS. DULLES IN COURT.



FORMER TREAURY AGENT THEOBALD AND MR. DULLES.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The happiest woman in New York to-day is Mrs. L. Harrison Dulles, the wealthy and handsome Philadelphia society woman, who has been cleared by a jury in the United States District Court of a charge of smuggling into the United States a pearl necklace valued at over $25,000.

The most crestfallen man is William Theobald, a former special agent of the treasury, who, on the voyage across the ocean, warmed his way into Mrs. Dulles's confidence to make out smuggling against her. Theobald's peculiar conduct resulted in his dismissal.

The Government will probably appeal. The case was tried twice. The first time, mainly on the testimony of Theobald, the verdict was against Mrs. Dulles. The Appelate Court reversed the decision.

Mrs. Dulles brought the pearl necklace over from Paris on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm two years ago. Theobald was standing by, watching her as she bought the jewels in a Paris shop. As Mrs. Dulles did not specifically declare the pearls on her arrival, Theobald had them seized.

The former treasury agent was put through a merciless cross-examination by Delancey Nicoll, counsel for Mrs. Dulles, on the last day of the trial. He declared on the stand that when he had demanded in the saloon of the steamship after its arrival in port that Mrs. Dulles declare the necklace, she replied:

"I can't declare it here."

"I then accompanied her to a stateroom," said Theobald, "and she took the necklace from her stocking and gave it to me."

Mrs. Dulles glared at her accuser in court, but made no remark.

DESERTER OF 3 YEARS RETURNS

Henry E. Harris, a deserter from the Seventy-seventh Coast Artillery, who gave himself up here, is now confined at Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., awaiting trial.

Harris deserted in 1901 and went to Manchester, N. H., shortly afterwards marrying a Manchester girl. He worked as a teamster. Last Saturday he left his home, without notifying his employer or his wife, and gave himself up. He says that on account of constant fear of arrest for deserting he was unable to give proper attention to his work, and so decided to "face the music."

LABOR

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION COUNCIL 1896 BOSTON, MASS

A FURTHER curtailment of production in the textile industry just announced will affect 50,000 operatives in New England. The mill managers give the present depression in the market as the cause for their action. The employes of the Pemberton Mills of Lawrence have been notified that the plant will be shut down on Saturday for two months. Notices have been posted at the Methuen Mills in Methuen that they would be closed for a similar period at the same time. About 2,000 hands are employed by the two concerns. The Arlington Mills cotton department at Lawrence is on short time.

The mills of the Union Cotton Corporation, the largest in New Bedford, are closed for the balance of the week. It is understood that three of the mills operated by the corporation will remain closed for some time, while the others will run only four days each week. The Wamsutta company employs about 3,000 hands.

The New Bedford mills have been running on full time, and the Wamsutta is the first there to adopt a short-time schedule. The curtailment may possibly extend to other mills, as some of them are controlled by interests which are identified with the Wamsutta management.

The Edwards Manufacturing Company of Boston will close its mills in Augusta, Me., in July for two months. There are about 1,400 operatives in Augusta.

COPPERSMITHS FIRM.

At the headquarters of the striking coppersmiths employed by Hicks & Sons, Bowker street, and E. B. Badger, of Pitts street, it was said this morning that the situation was unchanged from yesterday, and the men were just as determined as ever to stay out until their demands had been granted. The scale has been signed by the Atlantic Works, Henry M. Coltman and by Bertram & Peterson, Fore River Iron Works, of Quincy. In all only thirty-five men are without employment. The trade is one of the best organized in the country. The number of men employed in this line does not exceed 500. In Boston there are but fifty-four. The men have established strike headquarters at Fyrhian Hall, No. 2 Main street, Charlestown.

WANT NON-UNION MEN.

Efforts are being made by the street railway company operating in Houston, Tex., to secure non-union men from the North to operate the cars. Not a street car is moving there. The company has asked the Mayor for protection and announces that an attempt will be made to-morrow to put the system into operation. The striking union men had meetings, at which it was agreed that there should be no violence or intimidation. The company's strike-breakers are expected there soon.

1,000 BRICKLAYERS OUT.

By a decision of the contractors a lockout of 1000 bricklayers and hod carriers was declared in Buffalo to-day. The trouble between the contractors and their men dates back to May 1, when the stonemasons struck for an advance from 45 cents to 50 cents an hour. Recently the Bricklayers' Union decided that they would not lay brick on concrete foundations, owing to the strike of the stonemasons.

The Master Builders' Association decided to suspend all operations.

INJUNCTION PERMANENT.

Sitting in Albuquerque, N. M., Judge Baker, of the District Court, has made permanent the injunction restraining the striking Santa Fe machinists from molesting the company's property or interfering with nonunion employes.

A motion by the machinists to modify the injunction so as to permit them to converse with nonunion men was denied.

FURNACE SHUT DOWN.

The Iroquois furnace at South Chicago has shut down, throwing more than 600 men out of work. The closing of the plant is the direct result of the lieup of the boats of the Lake Carriers' Association, causing the depletion of ore stocks.

WORKINGMEN, ATTENTION!

The BOSTON AMERICAN requests the workingmen of Boston and vicinity to communicate with the Labor Editor of this newspaper at any time they may have suggestions to make that will help the cause of the workingmen, or at any time that errors creep into the paper. This department is printed TO HELP WORKINGMEN, and give a truthful view of their affairs to all the AMERICAN readers. The AMERICAN is particularly desirous that the workingmen themselves should assist in making this department complete, interesting and helpful.

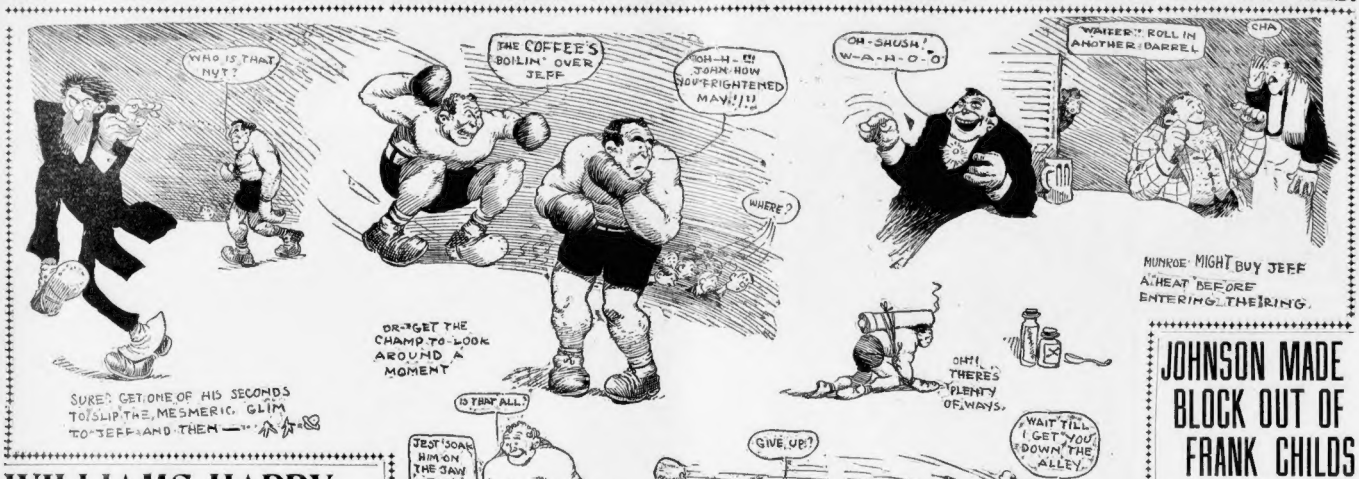
TAD OFFERS JACK MUNROE A FEW HINTS HE MIGHT USE IN TRYING TO WHIP CHAMPION JEFFRIES.



WILLIAMS HAPPY WHEN BOUT ENDS

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—Three fast minutes in the last round were the only promotion from keeping the Dave Holly Kid Williams bout from being one of the tamest that the Broadway Athletic Club has pulled off this year. Holly had all the best of the bout, but at that his exhibition was far below his usual form.

Williams made a miserable showing. Being slow, using poor judgment for distance and making little attempt to fight back at his dusky opponent in six rounds, he did not impress the spectators by his work. In the last round he cut loose to some extent by jabbing his only effective blow—a straight left to the face—repeatedly to Holly's front piece, but as these did not appear to have much effect Holly soon had Williams on the defensive and hugging and clinching whenever the opportunity presented itself.

Holly dropped the Kid in the first round, but it was more of a slip than a punch that sent Williams down. Williams did get to Holly's face a few times upon arising, but after that until the final round he was directly on the defensive. Holly adopted football tactics in the second, and in the third brought blood from the Kid's nose with several right-hand smashes. The fourth started off like a runaway automobile, but inside of a minute the principals were tired out, and finished up a tame round.

Williams looked tired in the fifth, after stopping a few of Holly's swings with his body, and the bell was welcome. Williams surprised everybody by taking the initiative when the sixth opened, but Holly soon sent him down, and as the bell rang Williams was ready to take the floor to escape the rushes, and happy when it all was over.

JOHNSON MADE BLOCK OUT OF FRANK CHILDS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Jack Johnson, who holds the title of world's negro heavyweight champion, made a veritable chopping block out of Frank Childs, the local negro heavyweight, in six rounds of hard fighting before the new Empire Athletic Club.

It was a great fight from a hard hitting standpoint, and Johnson impressed all the spectators as one of the shiftiest of the big fellows that ever appeared in a Chicago ring. Childs fought desperately. Those wicked right and left swings for which he is famous were sent time and again in the direction of Johnson's head, but the tall fighter's head was not in the place Childs figured on, and before he could regain his balance a shower of stinging right and left bunches would go ripping into the stomach, with an occasional jaw smash that would shake the stocky black form.

Johnson was loudly cheered when he received the verdict. Those who saw the fight declare he is the best heavyweight after Jeffries, and say that the "boilermaker" knows his business when he draws the color line. Johnson, they add, is the one man who could give the champion a real fight.

VANDERBILT WINS TWICE.

PARIS, June 3.—It was W. K. Vanderbilt's day at the Longchamp race meet, his Promotore winning the Prix Mont Geroult and his Turrenne winning the Prix Victor.

THREE BOUTS FOR BATH FANS

Special to the Boston American.

BATH, Me., June 3.—Jimmy Briggs, of Chelsea, and Jimmy Davenport, of Boston, have been matched for a fifteen-round bout, to be pulled off at the Alameda, in this city, June 13. Davenport, who is already in the city, has gone into training by taking ten-mile tramps daily, and expects to train down to about 135 pounds. For a curtain raiser it is hoped to make a short match between Kid Savage, the new lightweight champion of Maine, and Kid Miller, his sparring partner. Now preliminaries if is expected a match will be made between "Dave" Buckley of Portland and "Charley" Holbrook of South Braintree, Mass., probably for ten rounds.

WILL DISCUSS BIG GAMES

Harvard and Yale are planning for an executive meeting to take place at some neutral spot, probably Springfield, to discuss the selection of a team to meet Oxford and Cambridge in London in July.

Yale has sent out a selection of its own, which is unofficial, picking the men from both colleges that would compose the team. Harvard takes some exception to the arrangement and will ask for arbitration on the matter.

There is no conflict expected in making up the team, but in some cases it may be necessary to hold contests before the men are named. Tarson Dana, Harvard's athletic manager, is conferring with the Yale manager relative to a meeting to settle preliminary arrangements in regard to the trip abroad.

SPARRING PARTNERS SAY CHAMPION JEFFRIES IS STRONGER THAN EVER

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

HARBIN Ssprings, Cal., June 3.—Supposing that big Jim Jeffries disposes of Jack Munroe as speedily as he defeated his other opponents, how long is Jeffries likely to retain the championship?

Will he retire undefeated? Has he shown any signs of waning physical strength up to date?

These questions and others of a like character are being asked frequently nowadays, especially here in Harbin Springs, where the champion is training.

Dick Adams, friend of Jeffries's boyhood, and the butt of many of Jeffries's practical jokes, believes Jeffries will remain cock-of-the-walk for the next five years, providing he stints himself in the use of stimulating liquids.

Will Feel Wear and Tear.

Adams does not mean to infer that Jeffries will be a wreck, by any means, five years from now. His argument is that Jeffries, being such a ponderous fighting machine, will feel the ravages of wear and tear in the same proportion that an extra big automobile or railroad locomotive does, and that once his speed and stamina begin to forsake him his decline from champion-ship form will be rapid. Dick is quite patient fighting force to flare up, as it were. He is full of apologies to his men, and then again he will sulk and complain that he does not see what good it is working with other fellows when a man has to be under a pull all the time.

It was feeling this way that made him install a great log of sand as part of his training apparatus. Billy Delaney is about the only one of Jeffries's outfit who does not wax enthusiastic over the big fellow's wonderful strength and smiting power. At that, in all probability, Delaney is the greatest admirer Jeffries has. Delaney believes that no matter how talented a man may be, he cannot retain his hold on his exalted position unless he adheres to certain fixed rules.

Jeff's Different Moods.

As for Jeffries himself, he looks sheepish whenever he forgets himself or allows his

YEARLING COLT WORLD RECORD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

STAR PLAYERS IN THIS DEAL

NEW YORK, June 3.—From reliable sources it is learned that Manager Griffith of the Highlanders is willing to swap Fultz and Anderson for Barrett of the Detroit nine.

If When the Tigers opened their series here yesterday it was the chance for Dame Rumor to butt in again. It seems Manager Barrow of the Detroits and Barrett, the snappy little center-fielder, are not able to agree. They frequently have tiffs, which are not exactly beneficial to the moral welfare of the club.

Manager Griffith has been having a lot of trouble with Fultz. His leg frequently goes back on him at times, when he is most needed. From present indications it points to the swap being made.

MANY HORSES AT MEDFORD PARK

Few parks in any part of the country possess the appointments and attractions which belong to that track in old Medford town known as Combination Park. It was the design of the builder to lay out the infield in such a way that all sports could be participated in at the same time, and to some extent he was successful.

It is as a training and racetrack that Combination has its best record. The proprietor will give races there on all the holidays, giving four or more races a day on the half-mile, three heats, each-heat-a-race plan. It is very popular with local horsemen. It is a popular training track, and at the present time about a dozen trainers have eighty horses there.

C. M. Lockwood has fourteen horses which he is giving fast work, including Ben Wilkes (2:16) and Ornament (2:18).

C. O. Bailey has a star stable of ten head, and these horses have made records: Satan (2:13¾); Vera G. (2:14¼), by Illinois Chief; Medjura (2:14½), by Masquette; The Governess (2:18¼), by Alexander; Wilkes-wood (2:22¼), by Emperor Wilkes; Brownstone (2:20½).

E. A. Keuney has a stable of six, and these have been to the races and returned winners: Early Bird, Jr. (2:11¼), Bob Fitz (2:17½) and Nelse (2:29¾), by the Northern King.

George L. Doris has Angie Wilkes (2:21¼), by Johnny Wilkes; Lottie S. (2:20¾), by Bedford Bounty; Knox's Gelatine (2:20¼), and three green trotters. Fred Rideout had eight head, which he is preparing for the Fall campaign.

A. J. Furbush and his brother, W. J. Furbush, have four each, and Denny Bigley is handling two corkers, besides there are twenty or more which their owners keep at home, but work them out once or twice a week at the track.

HALF CENTURY OPEN BIKE RUN

Open to all riders, the go-as-you-please half century of the Knockabout Cycle Club, of East Boston, to South Framingham and return next Sunday should be one of the big road events of the season. The start will be made in three divisions, commencing at 9 a. m., from the clubhouse, No. 163 Meridian street.

Souvenirs will be an attraction for those who enter, who may get their cards down with Captain C. H. Ingles, No. 301 Havre street, East Boston, or at the clubhouse. If the weather is to the bad the big run will be held on the first pleasant Sunday.

It is the idea of Captain Ingles that the Knockabout bunch will pick up the "Old Timers' Run" at Jamaica Plain, when a rest and little fun with the vets, with perhaps a light lunch before the long spiel to Natick, will be on.

Amateurs Want Games.

An interesting game is to take place at the sullivan square playground to-morrow at 3 o'clock between the Princetons of Charlestown and the Wilsons of the same place. Murray and Fran-cis will be the Princeton's battery.

Warrens of Neponset, who have yet to lose their first game, defeated the Hankies of Everett, 10 to 5. Driscoll of the Warrens pitched a very good game, striking out twelve and allowing only four hits. The batting of Hughey Murray was very strong, he having four hits, including a homer. For the visitors, Barnes, Rowes and McCarthy played a very good game. To-morrow the Warrens go to North Weymouth on the Neponset playground.

* * *

If the Roxbury A. A. of Charlestown know how to play ball the Warren A. A. are among the fastest of the amateurs. Bill Ellard, manager. Harry A. Kennedy, of 92 Bulfinch street, Charlestown, says she will match the Warrens for all lunch for fun, money or marbles. If these two crack teams come together one of the liveliest battles of the diamond ever seen in Charlestown should result, as both are rock-ribbed crank, with big rooting support.

That starry boy, Jack McCue of Dorchester, whose good pitching wins many victories against the semi-professional teams along the North Shore last summer, will likely be the mound for some fast team as 45th arrives this year. Jack is a young chap who possesses much head work and pitching foundation, requisites that have in the past

Holly's face a few times upon arising, but after that until the final round he was directly on the defensive. DELMONT WILL FIGHT O'BRIEN

After mowing down a bunch of clever aspirants for New England bantam laurels recently, Al Delmont, through his manager, Jim McGoldam, of Chelsea, writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN as follows:

"Please state in the BOSTON AMERICAN that having seen Ronne O'Brien's challenge to any man at 110 pounds, I am ready to meet him at the BOSTON AMERICAN to post a forfeit, and will meet any other man in the world at 110 pounds ringside."

YEARLING COLT WORLD RECORD

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PUEBLO, Colo., June 3.—What is believed to be a world's record was made at a race matinee of the Pueblo Driving Club, when Harriska, a yearling colt owned by J. Sandicuhl, paced a quarter of a mile in 0:35¾.

STAR PLAYERS IN THIS DEAL

NEW YORK, June 3.—From reliable sources it is learned that Manager Griffith of the Highlanders is willing to swap Fultz and Anderson for Barrett of the Detroit nine.

If When the Tigers opened their series here yesterday it was the chance for Dame Rumor to butt in again. It seems Manager Barrow of the Detroits and Barrett, the snappy little center-fielder, are not able to agree. They frequently have tiffs, which are not exactly beneficial to the moral welfare of the club.

Manager Griffith has been having a lot of trouble with Fultz. His leg frequently goes back on him at times, when he is most needed. From present indications it points to the swap being made.

MANY HORSES AT MEDFORD PARK

Few parks in any part of the country possess the appointments and attractions which belong to that track in old Medford town known as Combination Park. It was the design of the builder to lay out the infield in such a way that all sports could be participated in at the same time, and to some extent he was successful.

It is as a training and racetrack that Combination has its best record. The proprietor will give races there on all the holidays, giving four or more races a day on the half-mile, three heats, each-heat-a-race plan. It is very popular with local horsemen. It is a popular training track, and at the present time about a dozen trainers have eighty horses there.

C. M. Lockwood has fourteen horses which he is giving fast work, including Ben Wilkes (2:16) and Ornament (2:18).

C. O. Bailey has a star stable of ten head, and these horses have made records: Satan (2:13¾); Vera G. (2:14¼), by Illinois Chief; Medjura (2:14½), by Masquette; The Governess (2:18¼), by Alexander; Wilkes-wood (2:22¼), by Emperor Wilkes; Brownstone (2:20½).

E. A. Keuney has a stable of six, and these have been to the races and returned winners: Early Bird, Jr. (2:11¼), Bob Fitz (2:17½) and Nelse (2:29¾), by the Northern King.

George L. Doris has Angie Wilkes (2:21¼), by Johnny Wilkes; Lottie S. (2:20¾), by Bedford Bounty; Knox's Gelatine (2:20¼), and three green trotters. Fred Rideout had eight head, which he is preparing for the Fall campaign.

A. J. Furbush and his brother, W. J. Furbush, have four each, and Denny Bigley is handling two corkers, besides there are twenty or more which their owners keep at home, but work them out once or twice a week at the track.

HALF CENTURY OPEN BIKE RUN

Open to all riders, the go-as-you-please half century of the Knockabout Cycle Club, of East Boston, to South Framingham and return next Sunday should be one of the big road events of the season. The start will be made in three divisions, commencing at 9 a. m., from the clubhouse, No. 163 Meridian street.

Souvenirs will be an attraction for those who enter, who may get their cards down with Captain C. H. Ingles, No. 301 Havre street, East Boston, or at the clubhouse. If the weather is to the bad the big run will be held on the first pleasant Sunday.

It is the idea of Captain Ingles that the Knockabout bunch will pick up the "Old Timers' Run" at Jamaica Plain, when a rest and little fun with the vets, with perhaps a light lunch before the long spiel to Natick, will be on.

Amateurs Want Games.

An interesting game is to take place at the sullivan square playground to-morrow at 3 o'clock between the Princetons of Charlestown and the Wilsons of the same place. Murray and Fran-cis will be the Princeton's battery.

Warrens of Neponset, who have yet to lose their first game, defeated the Hankies of Everett, 10 to 5. Driscoll of the Warrens pitched a very good game, striking out twelve and allowing only four hits. The batting of Hughey Murray was very strong, he having four hits, including a homer. For the visitors, Barnes, Rowes and McCarthy played a very good game. To-morrow the Warrens go to North Weymouth on the Neponset playground.

* * *

If the Roxbury A. A. of Charlestown know how to play ball the Warren A. A. are among the fastest of the amateurs. Bill Ellard, manager. Harry A. Kennedy, of 92 Bulfinch street, Charlestown, says she will match the Warrens for all lunch for fun, money or marbles. If these two crack teams come together one of the liveliest battles of the diamond ever seen in Charlestown should result, as both are rock-ribbed crank, with big rooting support.

That starry boy, Jack McCue of Dorchester, whose good pitching wins many victories against the semi-professional teams along the North Shore last summer, will likely be the mound for some fast team as 45th arrives this year. Jack is a young chap who possesses much head work and pitching foundation, requisites that have in the past

BASEBALL CARDINALS ARE STILL IN TOWN BOXING McCLELLAND DEFEATS ATTEL RACING AND ALL ATHLETICS

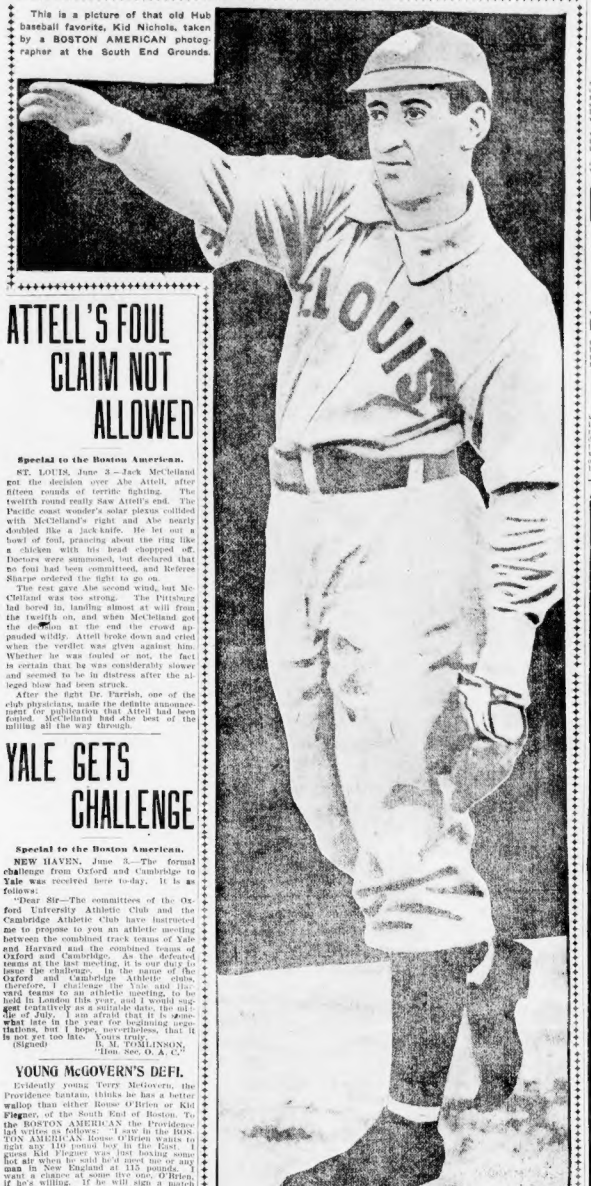
This is a picture of that old Hub baseball favorite, Kid Nichols, taken by a BOSTON AMERICAN photographer at the South End Grounds.



ATTELL'S FOUL CLAIM NOT ALLOWED

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, June 3.—Jack McClelland got the decision over Abe Attell, after fifteen rounds of terrific fighting. The twelfth round really saw Attell's end. The Pacific coast wonder's solar plexus collided with McClelland's right and Abe nearly doubled like a jack-knife. He let out a howl of foul, prancing about the ring like a chicken with his head chopped off. Doctors were summoned, but declared that no foul had been committed, and Referee Sharpe ordered the fight to go on.

The rest gave Abe second wind, but McClelland was too strong. The Pittsburg lad bored in, landing almost at will from the twelfth on, and when McClelland got the decision at the end the crowd applauded wildly. Attell broke down and cried when the verdict was given against him. Whether he was fouled or not, the fact is certain that he was considerably slower and seemed to be in distress after the alleged blow had been struck.

After the fight Dr. Parrish, one of the club physicians, made the definite announcement for publication that Attell had been fouled. McClelland had the best of the milling all the way through.

YALE GETS CHALLENGE

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, June 3.—The formal challenge from Oxford and Cambridge to Yale was received here to-day. It is as follows:

"Dear Sir—The committees of the Oxford University Athletic Club and the Cambridge Athletic Club have instructed me to propose to you an athletic meeting between the combined track teams of Yale and Harvard and the combined teams of Oxford and Cambridge. As the defeated teams at the last meeting, it is our duty to issue the challenge. In the name of the Oxford and Cambridge Athletic clubs, therefore, I challenge the Yale and Harvard teams to an athletic meeting, to be held in London this year, and I would suggest tentatively as a suitable date, the middle of July. I am afraid that it is quite what late in the year for beginning negotiations, but I hope, nevertheless, that it is not yet too late. Yours truly,

(Signed) B. M. TOMLINSON,
Hon. Sec. O. A. C."

YOUNG McGOVERN'S DEFI.

Evidently young Terry McGovern, the Providence bantam, thinks he has a better wallop than either Rouse O'Brien or Kid Fiegner, of the South End of Boston. To the BOSTON AMERICAN the Providence lad writes as follows: "I saw in the BOSTON AMERICAN Rouse O'Brien wants to fight any 110 pound boy in the East. I guess Kid Fiegner was just boxing some of his men when he said he'd meet me or any man in New England at 115 pounds. I want a chance at some live ones, O'Brien, if he's willing. If he will sign, a match I will box him before any club that hangs up a purse."

CARROLL WANTS BOUT.

That clever little Brockton boxer, Billy Carroll, whose manager Jack Clooy is well known to all the Shoeville sports writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN as follows:

"Through the BOSTON AMERICAN I would like to match Billy Carroll, the crack 126 pound fighter of this town, Brockton, with some of the Hub boys of Boston. Carroll has a good record in New England, winning over thirty fights with only one battle lost. He will take on any live one at weight before any club."

FAST BOUT AT NEWMARKET.

In a fast main event of ten rounds, Young Kelly, of Boston, who has fought and bested the best men of his weight in the Hub, will tackle Johnny Bryson, the pride of Waltham, at the Newmarket, N. H., A. C., on June 7. This bout, originally booked for June 4, was postponed to allow both lads time to train for a feature mill in the Granite State Club.

TAYLOR IN PRIME SHAPE.

On deck again in prime shape for a bout before some New England club, Jesse Taylor, who signs himself colored feather-weight champion, writes to the BOSTON AMERICAN as follows:

"I have been doing some gym work and am ready to book up with some of these so-called champions at 116 or 120 pounds, and have met some of the best boys in the country."

NATIONALS FREE OF DEBT.

NEW YORK, June 3.—By paying the final instalment to J. Earl Wagner, of Philadelphia, the National Baseball League has cleared itself of debt incurred at the time its membership was reduced from twelve to eight clubs. Washington, Baltimore, Louisville and Cleveland franchises were bought, and now all have been paid for.

COLLINS CALLS IT BAD LUCK

CLEVELAND, June 3.—Jimmy Collins says it was hard luck. Cleveland fans declare it was due to fine headwork on Armour's part in taking Hess out and substituting Donahue. Take it any way you like, but the cold fact remains the Champs were dumped, and that's enough.

Collins was laid up in bed this morning with a stiff leg, but says he will be out this afternoon ready to turn the tables on the Blues.

It's likely Winters will go in the box to-day, while Donahue is rested to face the visitors.

GANS STILL AFTER BRITT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Joe Gans will visit the Pacific Coast soon. His object in going to the Golden State is to get Jimmy Britt into a match.

Britt's father has stated that he would never allow his boy to meet a colored man, but the champion will post a forfeit and make Britt show his hand in his home town.

CALDWELL QUITS QUAKERS.

Special to the Boston American.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—R. G. Caldwell, the University of Pennsylvania's star left handed pitcher, has quit the Quaker nine because Captain Devlin attempted to discipline him, suspending him from the team for a week. Devlin claimed that Caldwell had not been working for the interests of the team, and took this method to punish him.

If this fickle weather gent would only listen to the fans' plea for a glimpse of Charley Nichols' coming champions and the Hub Nationals in diamond combat 8S, Louis and Boston might, for the first time in three days, get a chance to play ball to-day.

It's up to the weather doctor to hypnotize Jack Dreiss into using powder puffs on his fearful brow, and blow for a mop at once to dry the wet lawn up on the old South End park, if the St. Louis series is to come off this week.

For an opening series with the wild and woolly visitors from World's Fair precincts this spell of weather beats the band. Here's a number of rooters waiting to cheer for "Nick the King of Pitchers," who helped the Hub on to many a flag raising, but the best they can get is rain checks day after day.

Up in his lofty aerie the weather prognosticator whispered last night it's no cinch the rain god will oblige the fans by cutting out his dopey act in time for to-day's first battle. What a mean old chap. J. P. can be, and he knows it's Ladies' Day, just the time when he ought to be all smiling and pleasant to the fair enthusiasts.

But all hands hope Old Sol's chirpiest rays will put the ground in right condition for a mellow show, even if the breeze is a trifle chilly for this season.

Uncle Sol may take a burning notion to come through strong before 3.30, and give the fair fans, who will be out in numbers a fine chance to see the diamond gladiators. Pleasant sight that. Pine, for the fair fans!

WORKING BOYS' GAMES.

Sanctioned by the New England Association of the A. A. U., games will be held by the Working Boys' Home at Apollo Garden, Roxbury, June 18. Father James T. Landrigan has charge of the contests, which will be: One hundred yard dash, handicap; 440-yard run, handicap; 880-yard run, handicap; one mile run, handicap; running high jump, handicap; running broad jump, handicap. There will also be team races, one open to athletic clubs, another to high and preparatory schools. Other special contests are on the cards.

GRIFFO MEETS GANS TO-NIGHT

Special to the Boston American.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—The bout scheduled between Joe Gans and Sam Langford has been called off, and Kid Griffo, who in his recent bouts has shown well, has been substituted to go on at the Eureka A. C. to-night.

The bout will be a handicap one, in which the lightweight champion agrees to stop Griffo stop within ten rounds, or forfeit his end of the purse. Besides, should Griffo stay the ten rounds, the club will give Griffo $100 for each additional round he can stay with the lightweight champion.

'CORBETT' GLAD TO GET HOME

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 3.—"These German ships make me tired," said "Young Corbett," the pugilist, who arrived home on the Deutschland of the Hamburg-American Line. "Ted Sloan and I went to the orchestra leader on Memorial Day and asked him, as a favor, to play 'The Star Spangled Banner.' What do you suppose he said? 'I'm too busy.'

"They make me tired. They had plenty of time to get Wagner in a strangle hold, and it took most of my time trying to get out of range. I'm mighty glad to get home, and I'm ready to start training at once.

Pick-ups From the Diamond

Charley Hickman is the Nova' dungeon man next to King Lary and Will Bradley. Only for Chick Stahl, he would have cinched the winning run in the 3rd inning.

Monte Cross is at the bottom of the Athletics' batting list, but he helps out on the team end.

Wyatt Lee is a hero one day and a lobster the next. He wore a halo when he beat Boston, but the Reds put him out of commission on his next appearance.

Hahn, of the Reds' pitching staff, is worked hard and often—a big job in charge.

Patsy Seybold will be in the Athletics' line-up shortly. He is needed at his old post.

McGinnity and Harper have all the National League batters chattoed. Who will be the first to break the spell?

HERE are four more Boston girls, who, it is evident from their photographs, are well qualified to go before the great jury of AMERICAN readers that is to decide the interesting question: "Who Is the Prettiest Girl in Boston?" Interest in this competition is growing apace, and photographs of beautiful young women of this city are coming in rapidly. They will be published from time to time for the delectation of the readers of the AMERICAN. All the charming Boston girls who feel that their claims to the foremost place in the contest ought to be recognized should send their photographs to the AMERICAN at once, so that the friendly and discriminating jury may get an early opportunity to pass upon their pretty features.

WHO KILLED GERALD BROWN?

BY CAPT. RICHARD RUDD.

What Reader of the Boston American Can Solve the Problem in This Story.

CHAPTER XX.—CONTINUED.

DEXTER looked at an envelope the man held in his hand. It was large and square and addressed in an angular feminine hand.

He rose slowly, crossed to the door and took the envelope.

He tore it open without a thought of what it might contain. It was probably some fresh trick of Mathews', some new means of torturing him which the fellow's diabolical invention had lighted on.

"Dear Mr. Dexter," the note read, "the gentleman who bears this you, I am sure, help you, and indicates that will be of service to me, for without your assistance I don't know how I am ever going to get out of the awful difficulty in which I have found myself. Please listen to what he says and act as he bids. I am sure that it will be best for both of us.

"Yours truly, GRIMES."

"Let the man come in," said Dexter, feeling more than ever the force of what Mathews's lodger once had looked upon him, and returning to his rock he resumed his seat.

In a few minutes he heard a step at the door and looked up.

Again Mathews leered at him through the bars.

"Well, Dexter," he said, "why in the name of all that's horrible do you come here? I don't want to talk to you. I won't talk to you. Do what you will with me, but I'll not degrade myself by listening to your devilish hints."

"But my dear Mr. Dexter," purred Mathews, "the note. The note. Evidence, you know."

He muttered to the jailer, who obediently opened the door, admitted the visitor, and then, much to his secretly, walked off down the corridor.

"Well," said Dexter shortly.

"Well," said Mathews, "you see Miss Grimes and I owe a good deal of cash other nowadays."

"So much the worse for Miss Grimes."

Mathews leaned forward thoughtfully. Then he looked intently into Dexter's eyes and spoke in a low tone.

"Dexter," he said, "I want to marry the girl, you can't, so you oughtn't to care. Besides, her father is a murderer. That's all recorded, and I'm afraid of him. I don't want to get him out of the way, do you? If you know what is good for you, you'll do as I say, for it will be the same by you, with interest.

Dexter, listening to Mr. Otis' barked sound, and lowered his voice till it hardly rose above a whisper.

"If you'll promise to clear me by your statement from any entanglement in the awful unpleasantness at your uncle's death, I'll furnish evidence that'll free you in a minute, and substitute one and fasten the other. And then? questioned Dexter, coldly.

And then, of course, I'll marry the girl. Quick; give me your answer, we haven't many minutes to waste. Old Grimes will be on the train in a jiffy.

"You think Miss Grimes will approve of this?

"How else did I get the letter?"

"By some dirty trick that I don't care to think about."

Mathews reddened. "You're bold for a friend-man in your position," he muttered, but I have stood a good deal from you. Now, once for all, will you do as I say, or will you answer, and we'll settle the other affair later?

Dexter rose slowly and faced the man, whose face looked vanished, and who was smiling, almost fawning before him.

"My answer," he said, "is this." And he struck the fellow full in the face with a blow that sent him reeling to the floor.

For a moment he lay motionless, and Dexter glowed with the hope that he had withou put an end to at least one of his enemies. But as he went to leave he was startled away his giddiness and pulled a long knife from under his coat.

"I'll do what Grimes sent me here to do," said Mathews, throwing back his arm to attempt at Dexter like a tiger, while the blade gleamed in the air.

CHAPTER XXI.

Enter the Murderer.

DEXTER waited one moment, then he sprang quickly to one side, and the descending knife doubled its point on the iron wall.

"That's your game," he said, "two can play at it," and he seized the scoundrel by the throat and choked him till his eyes started from his head.

"Mercy," gasped Mathews. "Mercy."

Dexter loosened his grasp a little.

"Mercy" again said Mathews, his voice faint and whistling in his throat. "I'll do everything you say, only let me go."

Dexter backed about him, secured the knife and then allowed the man to rise.

"It wasn't I that meant to do it," said Mathews. "It was Grimes who sent me. I offered you better terms. I'll make them better yet."

He backed away toward the door. Mathew's face took on a different look.

"Call the jailer and have you arrested for attempting my murder," he said. "I'll make you to feel with Horace Mathews did."

"No! all you're well on your way to your last descent," said Dexter, and with a sud den rush he again laid hold of the fellow, and a renewed struggle, this time for life and death, began.

Recent fear and food had restored to Dexter some of the strength that had been sapped by the cruel fare he had labored under for so long, and the knowledge that the man who struggled with him had been the author of much of his suffering, and who, if allowed to live might make life a horror for the girl Dexter loved, redoubled his vitality. But Mathews was no mean adversary. Long of limb, sinewy and quick as a cat, he managed to get his left hand free and catch that could be fastened on him, and all the while with his free hand he kept reaching for his pocket.

As the two men swayed to and fro on the floor, their wrestling on the mat, Dexter noticed this movement and rightly guessed that the fellow was trying to free a weapon.

He waited his chance, and at length, when an opportunity served, he threw Mathews on his back, and over and over, with a quick motion whipped the weapon from his pocket.

All this time Mathews had not ceased for help, but now, perceiving from the man's face that his game was up, he screamed aloud in terror.

"Don't shoot! Don't shoot!" he cried in a voice that was intended not for Dexter, but the jailer in the corridor. "Don't shoot; I'll do anything you say."

"Not on this earth, Mr. Mathews," said Dexter calmly, aiming the pistol with as steady a hand as he could command. "Last night as well as disencrusted for a real murderer as an imaginary one, and it's really worth any man's life to give his fellows a world free from a creature like you."

There was the sound of running in the corridor, and as Mathews shrieked and bowled in terror, Dexter pulled the trigger. It snapped with a click, but there was no report.

In desperation the intending murderer tugged at the trigger till the cylinder had made a complete revolution, but each time without avail. And then the door was thrown open and the jailer walked in.

"Good thing for you, Mr. Mathews, I pulled the cartridges out of that pistol before I let you have it," said that worthy. "I knew it wouldn't be safe to take a gun into the room with you. I'll take that. Then to Dexter. "Now, back onto your bench, or you'll get some real shackles and no mistake. Hurry up with them handcuffs."

Another officer was now at the door and in a moment or two Dexter, who knew that resistance would be useless, and that he suffered to be slipped on without protest.

"They're always that way," said the jailer. "All the time we have them desperate ones, or then gets as quiet as lambs. I handled John Lee and his wives. I was in N'yaws."

Mathews had availed himself of the first opportunity to get hold of the door, when the two men entered, and started down the corridor he lingered a moment.

"Send all you'll get," he called to Dexter, "in a short little session in the chair, and just once more I came to the building when Prudence and I are married."

Dexter groaned as the words fell made no reply.

"Well, Johnnie," said a voice at the door; "you've made a nice hash of all this business, haven't you?"

"Moss!" shouted Dexter. "Moss, you traitorous rascal! To think that you, who are as bad and worse than the rest of them, should dare to come here."

"Oh, I know all about it, Johnnie," said Moss soothingly. "I heard about their telegram, and thanks to a little assistance from some friends of mine on the New York force I looked them all up for it, and I guess you'll get out without the formality of a trial. The only thing I'm sorry about is that I've found the murderer."

"Found the murderer!" gasped Dexter. "And why should you be sorry for that?"

"Because he's such an inoffensive old party, and if I hadn't found him we might have been able to put off our friends in stead of him. The jailer will be here in a minute to release you in my custody and I'll show the assassin to you."

Wondering, bewildered, but filled with a relief that almost threatened to wreck his self, Dexter saw two minutes later he followed Moss and the jailer to a little room off the office of the chief of police.

"There," said Moss, pointing to a man on a bench, "is the unhappy man who killed Gerald Brown. And to think that he must die, and the best we can do for Mathews and Grimes is the pen for life!"

Dexter looked at the man. His form was bent with age, his face was wrinkled, and white wavering lines grew looked out of it, its dress he was seedy, and his hair was long and straggling. He was a stranger, thought Dexter, but a murderer never.

"Oh, yes, he is though," said Moss, as if in answer to his unspoken words. "Look up to it himself, or even I wouldn't believe it myself."

"Let's go and look at the others now and then we'll go on to New York and on the way I'll tell you all about it."

CHAPTER XXII.

A Midnight Murder Party.

"IT WAS luck, Johnnie, nothing more," said Moss, when the two were sealed on the New York train.

"There is the whole story, and when I've told it I'll tell you how I discovered Whitely, for that is the real murderer's name—Martin Whitely.

"Whitely was indebted to your uncle for a sum of money that was too big for him to pay, and he was facing an excellent prospect of being dispossessed. As he had an aged wife to think of and object to that as a pleasant anticipation, and he had been brooding over it all the evening that so many things happened at your uncle's house.

"At last he decided to go and see the old man and appeal to him for money. It was about 10 o'clock, and old Smithson, after some argument, let him in.

"But it was after the time of day when your admirable uncle was accustomed to transact business with mercy, and he told Whitely pretty sharply that there was nothing doing in that direction.

"The two men had a violent argument, Whitely threatened to call the police, and the poor old soldier, who had all his life been as cold as a spring zephyr, was possessed of a violent temper, and setting a bill like that stood on the desk, used it as a weapon with such good effect that Whitely, in horror, he saw what he had done it was too late for him or anyone else on this earth to undo it.

"And now comes our friends, whom we have been pursuing with such ill luck for the last week. As I told you in my letter the house that you and Brown lived in was a favorite death trap for the murder trust, of which Grimes was the most conspicuous member.

"By the merest coincidence a date had been made for that evening to kidnap Mr. Brown and to remove him to some place of security, there to remain until he could be persuaded to pay Grimes price for his liberty.

"These arrangements had been carried out with all the detail which distinguished the methods of the trust.

"It must have been Mathews who called to you from the wall. He could not have been out of the house when you came in, and I judge that he and his whole precious crowd were gathered in the secret passage most of that night.

"Of course the policemen that came to the house were unable to find them, as they had no idea that such a passage existed.

"Mathews was in charge of the job, the Chinaman was to loiter around to throw the police off the scent, and Duggins and his pal were to do the kidnapping. Grimes did not expect to be present, but at the last moment he changed his mind and came down to the housing, taking care, however, to keep well in the dark.

"Well, that evening going was collected in the passageway when Whitely came in, and, although Grimes grieved to interfere when the blow was struck, he was too late to prevent it, instantly changed his plans. It was decided that Whitely was to be taken a prisoner and turned over to the police as the murderer as soon as a reward could be offered, provided some adequate excuse could be found for the presence of the gang in the house.

"When you came into the room and began your explorations, there was much talk of putting you out of the way, but it was at last decided that you would be more valuable as a man to pay rewards than as a corpse, and remember corpse.

"They didn't give you a second chance to catch them, however, but escaped Whitely, removed the body while you were busy with old Smithson.

"Now comes in the first time that Grimes concluded he could get along without Duggins and his pal, who he feared he could turn over to the police as common things.

"That determination resulted in the row you saw in the coffee house, and in your subsequent kidnapping.

"I have pieced this story together from what I saw myself and from what Whitley has told me, and without any elaborate deductions or inferences, I have a case that will put the whole crowd out of the way, except Duggins and Dan, who have repaired to parts unknown. The girl? Oh, we'll take care of her. She knows more about her papa than she did, and as soon as I got here I looked her up, and sent her off to some friends of hers. You can bet your there when we have these other matters disposed of.

"How did I find Whitley? Luck, I tell you. Just dead luck. I got what I came down some local policemen, who said there was a man living in the coffee house, and a little neck or weeds near Whitestone. I asked a few questions, and, satisfied as to the identity of said tramps, visited the place, where I found Whitely a prisoner. They had been calling him about three times a week with a little food, but Whitley had left the job to Duggins and Dan, who, as you may imagine, had neglected it badly, and the poor old chap was pretty nearly starved to death.

"I began to have a row and when I saw him, and as soon as he was restored with food and drink, he told me all I know.

"No, Smithson wasn't a party to it at all. Mathews had visited him at the hospital, and by offering him more money than he had ever heard of before, made an offer of him. The poor old fellow's mind had been upset by his nephew's murder, and he is little more than childlike now.

"Hello! here we are at the station. Who are all these people? Reporters, naturally. Do you think you can stand a row? New York with the biggest murder story in years up your alley and you asked a few questions?"

Moss concluded the story of Simon Moss, and this was all that Dexter ever found out about the matter, for he was tired enough, however, and it also proved satisfactory to a jury, as two white men and a Chinaman, now serving life sentences in a penitentiary can testify.

Old Whitley, after he had borne witness against the members of the trust was certified to be insane, and died before his own case came to trial. The mortgage on the Smithson house was never foreclosed.

Mrs. John Dexter often asks her husband if he doesn't think he can do something in the way of securing executive clemency for her father, Old Grimes, but although Dexter would willingly do this, or anything else to oblige his pretty young wife, he has always found one Simon Moss so strongly arrayed in opposition to him that his appeals have been in vain.

As for Duggins and Dan, not even Moss was ever able to find them, but no doubt they are now doing time some place in the West, for gentry of their calibre seldom remain long out of jail at a time.

THE END.

Pretty Girls of Boston! SEND IN YOUR PHOTOGRAPHS

A hundred handsome girls walk on any of the shining streets of our city, in the Common, the Public Garden, the Parks, Commonwealth avenue and in the adjacent suburbs, discloses the fact that there are more pretty young women and girls to be found in and about Boston than in any other city in the United States.

So that the readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN may form themselves into a great jury to decide the question, we request that photographs, properly authenticated, be sent to the BEAUTY EDITOR, BOSTON AMERICAN Office, 80 and 82 Summer Street.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN

Ladies' Work or Artist Apron.

No matter how much study a woman may possess, no matter how she may be devoted to her profession, those who work among women practically, like nurses, dressmakers, milliners, etc., find that a woman's dress is the first thing to attract attention, and that, in fact, it is the first thing to which a woman looks, and the more perfect and becoming it is, the more favorable will be the impression she will make. The design shown here is a most becoming one, and is also one which has been adapted to a hard color and which will wash perfectly. It is also one which can be made of any of the many pretty cheap cloths of fashion and there are many of these which are very pretty, so that it is hard for the housewife to say that she cannot afford one, and that she is to just as well pleased with one of these as an apron is to be worn.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN will send a pattern of this apron to any reader who will send a dime to cover all cost of handling the order. Address your letter to the PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 220, Back Bay, Mass.

Kindly write name and address plainly. Give small, medium and large.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-one years of age, and have been keeping company with a young man of the same age for about a year. I love him dearly. I do not think this young man loves me, as he is not affectionate and has never shown it in any way. The few times he called he used to take me to the opera or a dance, but for the last four months he has not taken me anywhere. We have never had a quarrel. Do you suppose he is doing this as I will give him up? Do you think I ought to ask him if he has grown tired of me? Please answer as soon as possible, as I intend to act on your advice.

PERPLEXED.

I SHOULD not be too hasty in judging the young man. Possibly his finances will not permit him taking you around as much as he used to, and he does not like to say so. I think the fact that he has been attentive to you for so long a time proves that he cares a great deal for you. If he has changed you will soon know of it; so, if I were you, I would say nothing about it for awhile.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We are two young girls of seventeen, and are desperately in love with two young men who are twenty-two years of age. Please do not tell us we are too young to know what love is. We have been invited to an entertainment, and our mothers object to us going unless we would be justified in disobeying our mothers, and tell the young men we will go?

TWO HEARTBROKEN GIRLS.

Boston.

AS YOU do not wish me to say you are too young to know what love is, I will say nothing about it, but you surely cannot object to my thinking so. I do not think I should disobey your parents if I were you. It may seem a little hard just now, but you will see the wisdom of it later on, and will realize also that no matter how unjust a mother may seem at times, she is always working for that which is best for her daughter.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young lady for a year and a half. I think a great deal of her but she has been receiving the attentions of another young man. Yet she still seems to think a great deal of me. I would like to have your advice as to what course to pursue.

CONSTANT READER.

Lonsdale, R. I.

DO not let another man win the girl you love. The fact that you have a rival should make you work all the harder. She does not dislike you and that is half the battle won. Let her see that you are determined to win her.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady of eighteen years, and am finishing my education at a girls' seminary. I am very much in love with a young man of nineteen who deeply protests his love for me and wishes me to marry him this Summer. He had intended to enter college, and I wish you to tell me if you think it would be right for me to deprive him of his college education by consenting to do this.

MILDRED.

Andover, Mass.

I THINK if I were you I would postpone the marriage until he has finished his course at college. It would be of great benefit to him in after life, and besides you are both very young and may change your minds in the next few years.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady nineteen years old. I am deeply in love with a gentleman four years my senior. I am a little taller than he is. My friends make fun of me and say he is too old and not tall enough for me. Do you think he is too old?

FLOSS.

Somerville, Mass.

I DO not believe I should let the talk of my friends trouble me. The fact that he is not quite as tall as you are makes no difference. He is certainly not too old for you.

Choosing a Wife in Russia.

ONE of the most interesting sights in Russia is the exhibition of would-be brides which takes place annually at Kiut, near Moscow. On the festival of the Epiphany all the young peasant girls and women who wish to get married in the course of the year are mustered in a long row in the principal street. In order to make themselves attractive to the young men who come to see and admire them they don nearly everything in their possession. A procession is formed, and on the way to the church the young men approach the would-be brides, examine them in succession, and, if the young people think they will make good wives, a formal visit is paid to the parents. A marriage in Russia is arranged in a very business-like manner every item of the trousseau being exacted beforehand and noted down as part of the bride's dowry.

For Me.

BY CLIFTON BINGHAM.

YOU ask me, dear, what you have done for me.
Your love has taught these sightless eyes to see
A light I never dreamt on earth could be:
This have you done—for me!

You ask me, dear, all that your love has sent,
The knowledge of what life and living meant,
A heart o'erfilled with measureless content:
This has it sent—for me!

New light, new dreams, a glory great and new,
That thrills my very being through and through;
I know not what love meant till I met you!
This have you done—for me!

Two Cheese Sandwiches

A CIRCULAR cracker of the variety known as water thin, is crisped in the oven. It is then spread with rich cream cheese, rather thickly, and topped with a layer of ruby bar-le-duc. This is made of stemmed red currants floating in a delicious thin jelly.

The other cheese sandwich consists of two oblongs, 3x1½ inches, of brown bread, cut very thin and freed from crust. The filling is prepared by rubbing some cream cheese very soft and blending it with minced watercress and two tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing. The brown bread sandwich is served on a crisp lettuce leaf. It is a tasty and delicious sandwich for summer luncheons and for picnics. Nothing can fill its place.

My Lady.

SHE walks unnoticed in the street;
The casual eye
Sees nothing in her, fair or sweet;
The world goes by.
Unconscious that an angel's feet
Are passing nigh.

She does a thousand kindly things
That no one knows:
A loving woman's heart she brings
To human woes;
And to her face the sunlight clings
Wherever she goes.

And so she walks her quiet ways
With that content
That only comes to sinless days
And innocent;
A life devoid of fame or praise,
Yet nobly spent.

BUNCHES Of Solutions Come to BRICK Puzzle; Some Are Right, Some Wrong and Comic ANSWERS

BUNCHES of answers.

Solving the fascinating brick puzzle is as popular as ever.

It would be almost ludicrous, at this stage, to ask you if you had seen it.

Of course you've seen this problem:

IF A BRICK WEIGHS SEVEN POUNDS AND A HALF A BRICK, HOW MUCH DOES A BRICK AND A HALF WEIGH?

Well, then, why don't you answer it? You may not get it right, of course.

But, then, (pardon, O Shade of Tennyson)—

"Tis better to have solved and lost
Than never to have solved at all."

Send your answers in the Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN.

Here are a few others:

Russ and Jap Are In It.

A Confusion of Words.

Puzzle Editor: The brick problem is, of course, a confusion of words. The seven pounds do not represent the true weight of the brick. That is a base for the calculation. That being so, taking our base 7+3+7=10½, the true brick. Therefore the brick and a half equals 10½—7=3½=3½. Answer.

D. E. A. D. Easy Tells How.

Puzzle Editor: If a brick weighs 7 pounds and a half a brick, a brick and a half would weigh 10½ pounds, and three quarters of a brick, or 21 pounds.
D. E. A. D. EASY.

"Fool the Thick Ones."

Why, certainly, the brick and a half weigh 11¼ pounds.

As near as I can see you merely state the weight of one brick, but by repeating the words "brick" seven times, and by using the word "problem" in the rest, it is puzzling. If a brick weighs 7 pounds and a half a brick, how much does a brick and a half weigh? Without the superfluous "a brick" I suppose some wise guys might see it. "Sure!"
J. H. F. GLEASON.
Newport.

Has He Got It?

Puzzle Editor: The following is my solution of the brick problem:

Let x equal number of pounds in ½ of a brick.
Then 2x equal number of pounds in a whole brick.
Then 2x equal number of pounds in a brick and a half.
x+2x=
2x—number of ½ of a brick.
14—2x—number of pounds in a whole brick.
21—2x—number of pounds in a brick and a half.
Answer—21 pounds.

Read It Right.

How Do You Figure It?

Puzzle Editor: One brick weighing 7 pounds and half a brick when reduced to pounds must weigh 14. One brick and half, therefore, must weigh three times 7 pounds, or 14 and 7 pounds—21, according to my way of looking at a brick.
How do you figure it?
E. S. SHEPHERD.

Really, It's Too Simple.

Puzzle Editor: There is but one answer to the brick problem, and algebra solves it in two minutes, thus:

Let x — weight of brick.
x/2 — weight of half a brick.

Then x − 7 + x/2
or 2 X x/2 = 14 + 2 X 7
x = 14, the weight of brick.
x/2 = 7, the weight of half a brick.
Then 14 + 7 = 21, or weight of 1½ bricks.
This is really too simple. Give algebra credit something really worth while.

Now, How About It?

Puzzle Editor: If a brick weighs 7 pounds and a half a brick, the weight for one brick must be 10 pounds 8 ounces, and if 10 pounds 8 ounces is the weight of one brick, a brick and a half must weigh 15½ pounds.

Try This One and See.

Puzzle Editor: I solved the brick problem in about half a minute. I don't like to bother with algebra, but this was a straight problem and easy, provided you don't require an answer in ounces. An answer in pounds can be had without it. The problem might just as well read: If a brick weighs seven pounds and a half a brick, how much does a brick and a half weigh? Why, half as much more, of course—that is, two and a half pounds and three-quarters of a bag of water. In the brick problem, if a brick and a half weigh 7 pounds and a half, a brick and a half will weigh one-half as much as a whole brick—that is, 3½ pounds—a brick and a half, 5¼ pounds, and three halves, or a brick and a half will weigh 7 times 3½ pounds—a brick—10½ pounds and ¾ of a brick. It is no use trying to make pounds out of that half of a brick any more than it is out of a half a bag of coal, water or meal.

Answers in Bricks.

Puzzle Editor: As this problem does not call for the answer to be wholly in pounds, my solution is the following:

Confident She Is Right.

Medium Weight Brick.

Describes His Method.

Puzzle Editor: My solution is to determine the weight of original brick, therefore I take this method to add to 7 pounds ½, making 10½ pounds, to call that one brick. Add the 7 pounds, making weight of one brick 12½ pounds. Add the half brick at 6¼ pounds, making weight 18¾.
F. R. HEMEON.

Arithmetic and Algebra.

Puzzle Editor: It is surprising how light headed some people are. Yet your brick problem is somewhat catchy, because the letterhead invites two denominations, viz.: Pounds and ounces. Of course, I know that this we deduce that a brick must be of the same denominations, so here is your problem or theorem:

7 pounds + ½ brick = ? brick.
7 pounds + 1 brick = ? brick.
7 pounds + 1½ brick = ? brick.
(or here is another solution:
Let X—wt. of brick.
X + ½ brick = 7 lbs.
X + 1 brick = ? lbs.
X + 1½ brick = ? lbs.
X + ½ = 7 lbs. ½ brick.
X = 7 lbs. − ½ brick.
X = 7 lbs. − ½ brick.
2X = 14 lbs. − 1 brick.
3X = 14 lbs.
X = 4⅔ lbs.

Makes It Seven and a Half Pounds.

Puzzle Editor: I think the brick puzzle, which I found in the BOSTON AMERICAN, is a puzzle which puzzled me for quite a while. But after studying it, I came to the conclusion that if a brick weighs 7 pounds and a half a brick, then a brick and a half weighs 7½ pounds.

Beatty Says Three Times Seven.

Puzzle Editor: The answer to your puzzle question is twenty-one pounds. It is evident that the seven pounds represents half the weight of the brick and the other half is the half brick. If one half is seven the whole brick is fourteen and the brick and a half is fourteen plus 7, or twenty-one pounds.

NEPHEW OF CHINA'S EMPEROR LIONIZED

ARRIVES IN NEW YORK ON WAY TO FAIR AND GETS OVATION.

PRINCE PU LUN, WITH HIS INTERPRETER.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Prince Pu Lun, outranking according to the Chinese Minister the late Li Hung Chang, is monopolizing the attention of everybody at the Manhattan.

The prince comes as the Commissioner from the Celestial Empire to the St. Louis Exposition, but, desiring to see the real exposition of American greatness, he asked to be shown New York. The yellow flag of his empire, with its rampant dragon, waved over the hotel.

Eighteen assistants, servants and members of his personal retinue, arrived with the Prince. Wang-Kai-Kuh, Commissioner to the Fair, seemed to be the chief of his followers. The Prince spoke no English. Two interpreters served to tell him what was going on around him.

Forty Merchants Meet Him.

At the station forty of the leading Chinese merchants of New York, the Vice-consul and the Chinese Minister, all arrayed in their Chinese best, presented an unusual picture. The Prince bowed to the welcoming delegation serenely. He is a little man, five feet seven inches in height, Miss Grace Norris, who was killed by tigers in twenty-one years of age and wears glasses. Nearly an hour after his arrival he received the Chinese visitors in the stateroom of his apartments. The local Chinamen, holding their children by the hand, arranged themselves in a long line. They kowtowed to the Prince. He spoke to the first two in the line only. He thanked the visitors for their reception. Then the local Chinamen went back to Mott street, where the buildings were decorated with Chinese flags and gay streamers.

In a brief interview the Prince expressed his surprise and gratification at the industrial development of America.

Toast Japanese Navy.

At the dinner last night of the American Asiatic Association, at which Prince Pu Lun was the guest of honor, the toastmaster, John Foord, ex-Minister to Chile, aroused the wildest enthusiasm by toasting the Japanese navy. Half of the diners had gone, but those who remained cheered and cheered again and broke their glasses on the floor after drinking the toast.

None of the military men present would discuss the incident. Major-General Corbin, U. S. A., and John Barrett were present.

BANK TELLER STOLE $70,000 TO SPECULATE

Douglass M. Smith Confesses Using New Haven Bank's Money in Wheat Pit.

FREE UNDER $15,000 BAIL

One last flyer in stocks taken when he was almost "square with the game" caused the downfall and arrest of Douglass Maltby Smith, teller of the National Tradesmen's Bank, of New Haven, who has confessed to being a defaulter in the sum of $70,000. Most of Smith's deals were made through the Boston firm of Hopkins & Co., which was sent to the wall a few months ago by the Sully failure and through the firm's agents in New Haven, Yeomans & Dill.

Smith has been arrested on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $20,000. He has had his hearing and has been released on $15,000 bail furnished by wealthy friends in New Haven.

Smith had been a trusted employe of the bank for twenty-five years. By clever manipulation of the books he had been able to cover up traces of his dishonesty until his last flyer broke him. Then he realized that all was up. The time for auditing the books had come. Smith sent a note to the cashier of the bank, confessing the theft which had been going on for over two years. The greater part of the money has been taken within the past eight or nine months.

Smith's stealings have all gone into the wheat pit and the cotton pit. He has not a penny left. The National Tradesmen's Bank has begun suit by attachment against Yeomans & Dill to recover $50,000 of the money. The papers in the suit allege collusion between members of the firm and Smith to obtain the money from the bank by fraud. Property belonging to the brokers has been attached.

Smith is under a $15,000 bond in a surety company, which will go to recover the bank's losses.

He had a salary of $2,700 a year. He lived modestly with his wife and six year old son.

The bank will not be affected by the defalcation.

GOV. BATES BRANDED AS ENEMY OF LABOR

VETO OF WOMEN AND MINORS' BILL IS CONDEMNED EVEN IN PARTY VOTE.

Labor men throughout New England today denounce the veto of the women and minors bill by Governor Bates. Resolutions condemning the Governor were adopted by the Central Labor Union at Fall River, and representative leaders in Boston and elsewhere expressed opinions to which the Executive is sharply criticised.

The statement with which the Governor accompanied his veto, and which was received with the old-stock arguments of mill owners, in opposition to labor legislation of any kind whatever, has drawn down upon the executive head the sarcasm and invective of labor leaders and politicians. Secretary Dennis D. Driscoll, of the State branch of the American Federation of Labor, said:

No Friend of Labor.

"The women have begged us for such a bill to protect them and their children. The Governor should have visited the cotton mills of Lowell if he wished to know whether or not such a measure is needed. The women of the Lowell Textile Council applauded when they first heard that the bill had passed. For more than ten years organized labor and all persons interested in the betterment of conditions of women and children workers have used every endeavor to bring about the passage of such a law. Every man with whom I have spoken vigorously condemns the Governor for vetoing the bill. He has shown that he is no friend of organized labor."

Henry Abbott, secretary of the Boston Typographical Union, said:

Cracked the Whip.

"The Governor's appeal to have Sunday amusements closed, made on the same day that he cracked the whip to drive the women and children of Massachusetts to work nights, indicates a degree of Pharisaism which lays him open to the bitterest sarcasm.

"His Excellency had no right to place the construction which he did upon the report of a special committee on earnings between employers and employes. That report recognizes the evil of overtime work in former years.

"A state cowed organized capital seems powerful enough, to bewitch the strongest men and bring their intellects.

A Most Humane Bill.

John J. Griffin, of the Expressmen's Union, said:

"It's a strange fact so many timid, prominent in so many walks of life, advocated the bill, and so many intelligent men in the Legislature voted for it, if it was not desired and was not an excellent measure. The fact that so many representatives voted to pass it over the Governor's veto shows that quite a few of the official representatives of Governor Bates' own party still believe it should be a law.

Frank K. Fall, New England organizer of the Tennessee Brotherhood, said:

"Governor Bates certainly was misinformed if he believed the bill was not required, or a measure for the betterment of the conditions and health of the women and children in the mills. Why the demand for the measure? Why have the textile unions, whose members best know the evil results of the night-work system, practically united all their efforts on the adoption of such remedial legislation if it was not desired or not what all agree would be one of the most humane bill ever enacted?

Bewitched By Capital.

C. J. Gallagher, of the Carpenters' Union: "The Governor's veto was the only way the corporations could have the bill defeated with the knowledge they had that the labor men could not get sufficient vote in the House to pass it over his veto."

J. L. Watkin, district secretary of the United Garment Workers of America: "It is a pity that the Governor should so belie his own record. He supported this bill in former years.

"A state cowed organized capital seems powerful enough, to bewitch the strongest men and bring their intellects."

President Roosevelt's Favorite Poem.

It Is Certainly Vigorous and Worthy, But a Little Plain Prose Perhaps Would Answer as Well.

On the authority of "a personal friend" the New York Sun declares President Roosevelt's favorite poem to be the following:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced or cried aloud;
Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the horror of the shade;
And yet the menace of the years
Finds and shall find me unafraid.

It matters not how straight the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll,
I am the master of my fate,
I am the captain of my soul.

An excellent poem for a fighting man, one whose pride and hope and ambition are in his own individual strength and prowess.

A man may be glad to have an "unconquerable soul."

And a man may be very proud to say: "My head is bloody but unbowed."

To be "unafraid," to say, "I am the captain of my soul," is pleasing, flattering to personal vanity.

But while this would have been a fine poem for an old Norseman fighting bears, or for a more recent Gaul rushing into a flood or into a burning house with sword uplifted, it does not seem exactly to meet the questions of to-day nor to furnish the inspiration that this day calls for.

It is nice to have a brave President, one ready to fight at the drop of the hat—or without any drop of the hat at all.

It would perhaps suffice, however, to have a President who should soliloquize in prose as follows:

We human beings are all pretty feeble little insects, appearing here for a few moments and vanishing again like the dew in the morning. Our power, physical and mental, is small. Our individual importance is nil. Some of us are poor, some are without friends, some suffer unnecessary pain and injustice. But, though feeble individually, we are relatively strong when united. Let us unite for the benefit of the unfortunate, relying on justice and humanity for our development, and not on brute force. Let us quench in ourselves foolish personal pride, the love of show, the half-frightened fondness for physical glory. Let us realize, as we go through the world, that each of us is nothing, unless his few days can contribute something to the happiness of those put here with him.

There would be nothing heroic or poetic in a President with such humble views. But he might be a very useful kind of President.

Meanwhile let us not overlook the qualities of the President that we have. He is certainly combative, in a world in which, until very recently, at least, good work was generally done through combat. He is certainly brave physically, and, compared with the average man in politics, he is very brave morally.

The poem which he has picked out as a standard in life does not, in our opinion, express the highest aspirations. It compares very feebly with some of the writings in the New Testament, some of the immortal sayings in which physical courage has no part.

But this poem is a better guide for a politician than the ordinary politician's guide. It is better for a President to be "captain of his own soul" than to have some trust owner the captain while he is only the cabin boy.

It is a good poem, on the whole.

Horses Cost Money; Men Are Cheap.

It's the Same O'd Story.

In the last column of this page please read the interesting statement written by the president of the National Longshoremen's Association. It is a simple, direct statement of fact. It will interest the thoughtful men and women for whom this newspaper is published

The longshoremen and a great many other workers complain of the fact that they are driven without regard to any consideration save profit for the employer.

How different is the attitude of the contractor toward the horse that he OWNS and the laborer that he HIRES.

He makes rules to protect the horse. If it is pressed very hard one day, it must rest the next. It must not be overdriven. If the horse is killed or ruined by overwork, THAT MEANS AN ACTUAL CASH LOSS TO THE OWNER.

No such rules protect the HIRED workman.

The idea is to get out of him all the work he is capable of doing in that one day, regardless of other days.

He must hang around earning nothing when employment is slack. He must jump in and work fourteen or sixteen hours at high pressure when he gets a chance, in order to keep his family going.

Thousands of longshoremen, models of health, of physical power in their youth, are old men at forty and unable to make a living.

If they drink they are pointed to with contempt by their soberer and more prosperous "betters." Nobody stops to ask whether a man, sound and sober by nature, was driven to drink through physical exhaustion.

It was a fine thing to abolish slavery—but many an intelligent slave owner would have refused to submit his slaves to excessive exertion, such as is put upon the longshoremen.

The intelligent slave owner was careful of his slaves as to-day's contractor is careful of his work horses. Like the work horse, the slave represented capital invested.

Eventually that human decency which abolished slavery will grow until civilization shall feel the same sense of shame at the sight of a man overworked for profit on a wage basis as it would feel to-day at the sight of a slave gang.

Meanwhile it is highly important that the labor union, representing combined manhood as opposed to individual selfishness, should make laws compelling respect for human life apart from financial interests.

The whole wealth of the nation, the REAL wealth, is its vigorous manhood.

Many employers are too dull, too unimaginative or too selfish to realize that the union labor laws which protect the American breed of men are at least as important to the nation as the other laws that protect money or forbid the importation of diseased breeds of cattle.

What Longshoremen Want.

BY DANIEL J. KEEFE, PRESIDENT INTERNATIONAL LONGSHOREMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Speaking from my own personal experience as a longshoreman, gained while working on the docks for many years, I will state boldly that when two gangs of men unloading lumber, coal, etc., from a vessel, the conditions being entirely the same, one gang working eight hours and the other ten, for a season of eight months or a year, the men working eight hours will have accomplished as much as those working ten hours, and have done better work.

Recognizing as a fact that the three first hours of the morning and the three hours after noon show the greatest and best results, it stands to reason that after eight hours' labor the accumulated energy has been exhausted, and the worker is drawing on his reserve or vital force for the accomplishment of the balance of his ten-hour day; whereas the stimulus of a shorter day allows him to recuperate and put forth his best efforts, without the strain, the fatigue or exhaustion required for ten hours.

Man is the only animal that mankind will expect or permit to set a pace of endurance for one day and then compel him to keep that pace for a quarter of a century. In most instances casting him aside at the age of thirty-five or forty years if he fails to perform the work as he did at twenty-five.

We may ask a horse to go fifty miles in one day, but we stop our calculations if, with the same horse, we must go 150 miles. And we fancy there are men who would term as brutes if we drove a horse forty miles each day for a week.

Society fails to recognize the poor human wrecks who failed to keep the pace, and whose untimely deaths are often attributed to many other causes rather than the real cause.

A gang of longshoremen on the different docks on Lake Superior will load from 6,000 to 8,000 tons of iron ore into a vessel in two and one-half hours.

This is too much to demand of any worker. The intense strain on the human system makes an eight-hour day a necessity for longshoremen.

Little Editorials from the People.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN welcomes its growing army of correspondents, who write their views on the many questions in which they are interested, but for the sake of all, and in order to give the hundreds who write to it a chance, it is requested that all make their "little editorials" very brief. Letters of from 100 to 200 words will speedily appear. Longer ones must wait, and are likely never to see the light.

FOR INNOCENT SUNDAY AMUSEMENTS.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In this country of freedom of religion, I fail to see why there should be so much discussion regarding an "open Sunday." If all amusement places, bands, etc., are to be shut up on Sunday, why not on Saturday, which is, if I remember aright, the Hebrew Sabbath day. Like the majority of men in this Commonwealth I work six days in the week, and on Sunday I feel like enjoying myself. A trip to one of the beaches or to a park is the general outcome. Now, what for? For quiet and rest and solitude? No, else I would have gone back to the woods. I go to enjoy myself; to be amused and entertained. The edict against the barroom and gambling den does not worry me. It is the stopping of the theatres, dancing, merry-go-rounds, keep the hop, and this class of harmless and enjoyable amusements that do so much to attract the crowd. These I miss and it worries me. We, who work though the week, do not want them closed on Sunday. We want them open.

If we work six days to earn our money, we should at least have the privilege of spending it as we please. Give us back our roller coaster and our Sunday theatre. We do not sell for whiskey or gambling. He who wishes that can always get it, even though he live in slums. Put give us back our amusements. Open them up, I say, for the working man, and thus prevent him from looking for the "side-door" as a consolation.

MEANT TO MAKE PEOPLE THINK.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I class the editorials of the BOSTON AMERICAN as a course of study; a sort of popular university extension, you might call it, and know that many others share my opinion. Whether they are short or long, they always contain some thought worthy of study, and are not made up of mere platitudes such as many editorials have become.
